AIR FORCE GENERALS SERVING IN JOINT AND INTERNATIONAL SLOTS

The select group of Air Force general officers assigned to joint commands and international agencies worldwide plays a vital role in making those activities effective. In the past, when identifying those officers in the September issue, we said they were "serving outside the Air Force." That is a misnomer; these officers remain USAF assets at all times.

This time, therefore, we want to give readers an insight into the variety of positions and the nature of the responsibilities carried by these generals, of two-star rank and higher, in joint and international assignments. Thus, after each officer's title is a brief description of his responsibilities.
