Introduction

The U.S. Revenue Cutter Service is one of the predecessors of the modern day U.S. Coast Guard. Formed by the first Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, to curb the loss of taxes by smugglers. Hamilton requested ten small cutters to patrol along the Atlantic coastline. In 1790 this force came into being and soon proved their worth. In short order, the small ships were undertaking other duties, including search and rescue and combat roles. The U. S. Revenue Cutter Service, indeed, does have a long history of service to the nation.

The deeds of the U.S. Revenue Cutter Service have contributed to the maritime history of the United States. Yet, there is very little material on the officers and men who filled its ranks. One of the reasons for this lack of information on the officers is the Service's seemingly haphazard method of personnel record keeping. In general, in place of detailed service records, officer data were laboriously written by hands into eight large volumes. Usually, the information contained only promotions and duty assignments. It was not until 1915, when the U.S. Coast Guard was formed by the amalgamation of the U.S. Revenue Cutter Service and U.S. Life-Saving Service that more detailed records were undertaken.

Another source of problems with obtaining information on the early officers of the U. S. Revenue Cutter Service was the method officers were acquired. During the early years, most officers were appointed by collectors of customs. In theory, they selected only those with a great deal of sea-going experience. In many instances, this type of recruiting did produce fine officers. All too many times, however, because the collector of customs was a political appointee, the U.S. Revenue Cutter Service officers were subject to the political spoils system. That is, when the collector of customs went out, the Revenue Cutter Service officer was apt to find himself on the beach. With a constant shifting officer corps, clerks in Washington, D.C., can be forgiven a lapse in a record. Once the U.S. Revenue Cutter Service established a School of Instruction, in 1877, political influence was on the way out and a truly professional officer corps could begin. It should be added that during the early years there was no retirement system and it was not unusual for Captains to resign after many years of service. Further, because of a lack of a retirement system, it is not unusual to have a great many officers die while on active duty.

In general, most researchers attempting to undertake work on the officers of the U.S. Revenue Cutter Service have been forced to use the fading and confusing hand-written registers of the Service. In some cases, it is necessary to trace an officer's record through three to four of these volumes and even then it is not absolutely clear that the entire record will be within the registers. This is especially true of those officers who served in the period from 1790 to at least the 1870s.

The purpose of this historical register is to gather into one easy to use source, information concerning the promotional patterns of the U.S. Revenue Cutter Service Officers from 1790 to 1914. The user is reminded of the above discussion about the chances for errors in the original registers. The researcher should consider this compilation a preliminary source to begin work on the officers of the Service. Especially for the early years, a great deal of information must be obtained from other sources within the National Archives, such as correspondence files.

Use of Register

The register is arranged alphabetically. Following the name of the officer are his promotions in the following order: rank and date. Dates are given in month, day, and year, with the full year at first entry and thereafter with only the last two digits. Thus, the entry: Smith, Robert L. Cadet 8/2/1890; 3LT(T) 8/5/95; 2LT 10/5/97; 1LT 11/8/00; CAPT 12/13/09; USCG, is read: Smith, Robert L. Cadet August 2, 1890, promoted to Temporary Third Lieutenant on August 5, 1895, promoted to Second Lieutenant October 5, 1897, to First Lieutenant on November 8, 1900, to Captain on December 13, 1909, and was still serving when the U. S. Coast Guard was formed in 1915. (See list of abbreviations for ranks and other items.)
