Guide to Reasonable Accommodation

(9 September 2013)

People with disabilities in the Arkansas National Guard Technician Workforce

I. Introduction

The purpose of this guide is to provide information on reasonable accommodation to qualified individuals with disabilities. The Rehabilitation Act of 1973, with amendments requires the employer to consider ways to alter, restructure, or change the manner of doing a job in order to allow a qualified person with a disability to perform the essential functions of a particular job, to be considered for a position he or she desires, or to enjoy equal employment opportunities.

III. Reasonable Accommodation

The Arkansas National Guard (ANG) is committed to ensure requests for reasonable accommodation are handled in an effective and expeditious manner. It is the obligation of ANG to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified individuals with disabilities, unless to do so would cause undue hardship to ANG. Examples of reasonable accommodations include providing interpreters, readers, or other personal assistance; modifying job duties; restructuring work sites; providing flexible work schedules or work sites; and providing accessible technology or other workplace adaptive equipment. The ANG has the following objectives:

- To enable the individual employee to perform the essential functions of the position, or to gain access to the workplace
- To enable an applicant with a disability to have an equal opportunity to participate in the application process and to be considered for a job
- To allow an employee with a disability an opportunity to enjoy equal benefits and privileges of employment are enjoyed by other similarly situated employees without disabilities

IV. Requesting Reasonable Accommodation

Individuals requesting a reasonable accommodation should complete the Request for Reasonable Accommodation form (Attached). The application for reasonable accommodation may be submitted to the supervisor or the Equal Employment Office. Under the Rehabilitation Act, medical information obtained in connection with the reasonable accommodation process MUST BE KEPT CONFIDENTIAL. All medical information obtained in connection with a request for reasonable accommodation must be kept in files separate from the individual's personnel file. If requests are given to the supervisor or hiring official they will immediately notify the EEO Office for assistance in processing the request.

V. Processing a Request for Reasonable Accommodation

The supervisor will be responsible for considering and approving requests for reasonable accommodation in coordination with the Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Office. The EEO staff will communicate with the requester to ensure that all effective accommodations have been considered where the specific limitation, problem or barrier is unclear. The EEO office will oversee the agency's reasonable accommodation process and will act as a resource for individual with disabilities and agency decision makers.

VI. Determining Reasonable Accommodation

Requests will be granted or denied expeditiously absent extenuating circumstances. After a request for accommodation has been made the next step is for the parties to begin the interactive process to determine what, if any, accommodation should be provided. This means the individual requesting the accommodation must communicate with the responsible designated agency official about the request, the precise nature of the problem that is generating the request, how a disability is prompting a need for an accommodation and alternative accommodations that may be effective in meeting the requestor's needs. In the event of a delay, a conversation with the requestor will occur to consider providing temporary measures.

If a requestor's disability and/or need for accommodation are not obvious or already known, the agency is entitled to ask for and receive medical information showing that the requestor has a covered disability under the Rehabilitation Act definition that requires accommodation. It is the responsibility of the requestor to provide appropriate medical information to the agency pertaining to the disability and/or need for accommodation.

All accommodation approvals or denials will be made in writing with a copy forwarded to the EEO office. Any denial will include specific reasons for denial. In addition to being in writing and including the specific reasons for the denial, denials must also identify the employee or office that made the decision. The requestor may appeal the denial to the next level of supervision that will also provide their decision in writing. Denials must include information about the individual's right to file an EEO complaint, to invoke other statutory process and information about the availability of the informal dispute resolution process.

VII. Time Frames for Processing Requesting Reasonable Accommodation

The agency shall process requests for reasonable accommodation and provide accommodations as soon as possible but decisions regarding accommodations should be rendered within 30 calendar days of the date request was received. If additional medical documentation is needed, the decision to grant an accommodation shall be made within 30 calendar days of the date all such additional documentation is received or obtained by the department. Extenuating circumstances are circumstances that cannot be reasonably anticipated or avoided in advance of the request for accommodation or are beyond the agency's control. When extenuating circumstances are present the time for processing a request for reasonable accommodation and providing accommodation will be extended as reasonably necessary and a conversation with the requestor will occur to consider providing temporary measures.

VIII. Military Technicians

Military Technicians also known as Dual Status Technicians may make reasonable accommodation requests, however, they must meet all applicable requirements for continued military service. However when a Military/Dual Status Technician loses their military membership they can lose their full-time technician job as well. The National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for FY 2008 [Public Law 110-181] amended Section 10216 of Title 10, United States Code to add subsection (g) which in certain circumstances can provide for the retention of military technicians who lose their military membership, and therefore their dual-status (DS) military technician positions, due to a combat-related disability.

Under the provisions of the FY 2008 NDAA, individuals may be retained as non-dual status (NDS) military technicians as long as the disability:

- (a) does not prevent him/her from performing the duties of the NDS position, and
- (b) he/she is not disqualified from performing the duties because of performance, medical or other reasons.

It does not require placement into the same [DS] position the technician held prior to mobilization and injury. Nor is the technician subject to mandatory placement as a result of the statute. State HR professionals will make every effort to place the technician into a valid NDS designated position with an established NDS position description. If an exception PD is required, normal procedures to obtain approvals will be utilized. Inherently military positions/functions (e.g. military command, pilot, aircrew, key staff) will not be converted to NDS to accommodate placement under this authority.

Eligibility for conversion to NDS will be determined on the basis of:

(a) examination of the DD Form 214 and/or military orders to validate military service and combat-related disability; NGB Form 22; award of the Purple Heart, due to injury as a direct result of armed conflict, while engaged in hazardous service, in the performance of duty under conditions simulating war, or through an instrumentality of war; and

(b) the attending physician's evaluation of position requirements and determination of the technician's work capacity assessment or "job readiness" certification. Certification of "job readiness" is a determination that the technician is likely to succeed in the performance of the duties of the position. A "qualified" individual with a disability is a technician who, with or without reasonable accommodation, can perform the essential functions of the position.

Selectees for continued service as non-dual status technician positions must meet basic education, experience, training and physical requirements set by NGB, DoD or OPM. They must also meet any selective placement factors that apply to the position being filled. If they require a reasonable accommodation they should follow the procedures set forth in this guide.

IX. DEFINITIONS

Designated Management Official.

The person who has authority to decide whether the Department will provide a requested accommodation. The Designated Management Official who grants a request for an accommodation shall also be referred to as the “decision maker.”

Dual Status/Military Technician

Positions in the National Guard Technician Program that require military membership in the National Guard as a condition of technician employment are in the excepted service under the provisions of 32 USC 709. This status means they are “excepted” from the rules that govern civil service employees in the areas of tenure and competitive requirements for appointments. Employment as a NG military technician does not result in “competitive” civil service status. Loss of military membership for any reason can cause termination of technician employment.

Essential Job Functions

The essential functions of a job are those job duties that are so fundamental to the position that the individual cannot do the job without being able to perform them. A function can be “essential” if, among other things, the position exists specifically to perform that function, there is a limited number of other employees who could perform the function if it were assigned to them, or the function is specialized and the incumbent is hired based on his/her ability to perform it.

Non-Dual Status Technician

Positions in the National Guard Technician Program that do not require military membership in the National Guard as a condition of technician employment are Non-Dual Status Technicians. This status means the rules that govern civil service employees in the areas of tenure and competitive requirements for appointments are in force and result in “competitive” civil service status.

Person with a Disability

An individual has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the person’s major life activities; has a record of such impairment or is regarded as having such impairment. Based on court decision, examples of major life activities include caring for yourself, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, and working.

Physical Impairment

Any physiological disorder, or condition, cosmetic disfigurement or anatomical loss affecting one or more systems such as: neurological, musculoskeletal, special sense organs, cardiovascular, reproductive, digestive, respirator, genitor-urinary, hemic and lymphatic, skin and endocrine

Mental Impairment

Any mental or psychological disorder, such as mental retardation, organic, brain syndrome, emotional or mental illness, and specific learning disabilities.

Reasonable Accommodation

The Rehabilitation Act of 1973 requires federal agencies to provide reasonable accommodation to qualified individuals with disabilities, unless to do so would cause undue hardship. In general, an accommodation is a change in work environment or in the way things are customarily done that would enable an individual with a disability to enjoy equal employment opportunities.

Undue Hardship

The significant difficulty or expense incurred, should the Department provide a particular accommodation. Agencies do not have to provide reasonable accommodations that would impose an undue hardship on the operation of the agency.

Invisible (Hidden) disabilities

These are disabilities that are not readily apparent, such as asthma, arthritis, chronic fatigue syndrome, epilepsy, kidney disease, diabetes, cancer, chronic depression, learning disabilities, and mild mental retardation.

Targeted Disabilities

Targeted disabilities are deafness, blindness, missing extremities, partial paralysis, complete paralysis, convulsive disorders, mental retardation, mental illness, and genetic or physical condition affecting limbs and/or spine.

Major Life Activities

A major life activity is an activity of fundamental significance to most people in daily life and not simply something important to a particular individual. A major life activity includes obvious functions, such as hearing, seeing, walking, speaking, caring for self, performing manual tasks, and breathing
