

S

Washington, D. C.
May 18, 1927.

Dear Yardley,

W.O.B. called to my attention yesterday that the clear text messages from the same source as the enclosed, have a considerable number of similar expressions such as "am well", "how are you" "love" etc., and suggests that it is possible that these words are being used for other expressions. What do you think.

Sincerely,

G.M.M.
GMM.

Dear Major Milliken:

This was a common method of code used during the war, and it seems reasonable to me that these expressions may very well mean something else. However, there is no method of arriving at a solution.

Joy
HOY