BACKGROUND

Primary: "Virtual Show of Strength" – Warrior Care Month

On November 5, 2008, then Secretary of Defense Robert F. Gates established November as Warrior Care Month to initiate a “DoD-wide effort aimed at increasing awareness of programs and resources available to wounded, ill, and injured service members, their families, and those who care about them.” Secretary Gates charged DoD to “continue to make it easier for our troops and their families to take advantage of all the assistance now available to them.”

The DoD, Military Services, and collaborating organizations mark Warrior Care Month by highlighting the strength and resilience – physically, mentally, and spiritually – of our wounded, ill, and injured service members, as well as their families and caregivers; raising awareness of the recovery coordination resources and programs available today; and inspiring year-round discourse regarding today’s warrior care priorities.

COMMUNICATIONS APPROACH

Warrior Care will actively communicate the availability of recovery coordination services and resources. DHA Communications will also promote approved content via all communication channels and seek opportunities to incorporate themes into key leader messaging.

COMMUNICATION OBJECTIVES	STRATEGIC ALIGNMENT

Produce and promote content to raise awareness of the significant achievements and milestones that often occur during the recovery, rehabilitation and reintegration or transition process.	Improve readiness, health and experience

KEY MESSAGES AND TALKING POINTS

Warrior Care Key Messages

- The Department of Defense has no higher priority than caring for the wounded, ill, and injured service members who have sacrificed so much.
- The Defense Health Agency's Recovery Coordination Program ensures uniform guidelines and standards for the care management of wounded, ill and injured Service members across the military departments.
- The Military Services' Warrior Care Programs provide command, medical management, and non-medical assistance to wounded, ill, and injured service members navigating the recovery and rehabilitation phases of the military medical treatment system.
- DoD continuously evaluates the needs of the warrior care programs to ensure an exceptional level of care is provided to the current and future population of wounded, ill and injured service members, their families, and caregivers.
- Proactive coordination of non-medical care, in concert with unparalleled medical care, ensures wounded, ill and injured service members are best positioned to embrace their new normal. Medical and non-medical care must closely align for the benefit of service members and their families.
- Warrior Care Month is an annual effort to increase awareness of programs and resources available to wounded, ill and injured service members, as well as their families, caregivers and others who support them.

Warrior Care Talking Points

- Warrior care encompasses a full spectrum of support through recovery, rehabilitation, and reintegration back to duty or transition into the community.
- In fiscal year 2008, the Department of Defense established policies, processes, programs and resources to provide oversight and uniform care standards for warrior care, which encompasses the full spectrum of support through recovery, rehabilitation and reintegration back to duty or transition into the community. Collectively, these efforts align under the Recovery Coordination Program.
- The Recovery Coordination Program and the Military Services' Warrior Care Programs provide comprehensive resources to assist recovering service members and support military families to meet their needs and achieve their goals.
- The Warrior Care's Recovery Coordination Programs (RCP) consists of Education and Employment Initiative (E2I), Operation Warfighter (OWF), Military Adaptive Sports Program (MASP), National Resource Directory (NRD). RCP also includes Military Caregiver Support.
- The wounded, ill, and injured population is broad, and includes not just the visibly wounded or injured. Many of the service members going through the recovery coordination process are suffering through a serious illness or dealing with post-traumatic stress or traumatic brain injury.
- Ensuring a successful transition for wounded, ill and injured service members requires ongoing collaboration between the Department of Defense and the Department of Veterans Affairs.
- Warrior Care Month is a time for everyone to familiarize themselves with the programs and resources available to wounded, ill and injured service members and their caregivers.
