MANUAL, ORGANIZATION AND FUNCTIONSINTRODUCTION

1. The "Armed Forces Security Agency Manual, Organization and Functions" outlines the organization of the Armed Forces Security Agency (AFSA) and its major elements, and the responsibilities and functions thereof.

ORGANIZATIONAL AND FUNCTIONAL CONCEPTS

2. The AFSA organization consists of several operating Offices and a coordinating Staff.

3. The AFSA Staff is composed of the Chief of Staff, and Staff Divisions corresponding to the principal functions of command insofar as they apply to the activity of AFSA. The Chief of Staff is the principal coordinating agent and adviser to the Director. Under his direction, the AFSA Staff functions as a single coordinated unit.

4. The AFSA Staff secures and furnishes such information as may be required by the Director, prepares the details of the Director's plans, translates these plans into orders as required, and arranges for those orders to be promulgated, and exercises the necessary staff supervision to insure compliance. The AFSA Staff brings to the Director's attention matters which require his action or about which he should be informed, makes a continuous study of these problems, and prepares tentative plans for possible future contingencies for the consideration of the Director. Within the scope of its authority, it supervises the execution of plans and orders, and takes such other action as is necessary to carry out the Director's intentions.

5. Staff supervision over a particular function includes:
- a. Recommending policies, objectives, and general procedures for approval of the Director.
 - b. Explaining and answering questions regarding specific application and interpretation of the policies and procedures prescribed by higher authority.

- c. Assisting in the development of satisfactory operating reports.
- d. Securing and analyzing data and information on performance results.
- e. Investigating and suggesting corrective action with respect to difficulties encountered.
- f. Furnishing advice and assistance concerning methods and procedures.
- g. Making specific recommendations for issuance of appropriate directives as may be necessary.

6. The Staff Divisions are concerned with planning, coordination, and staff supervision over all activities of AFSA pertaining to their respective functions. Coordination and the prompt interchange of information among the Staff Divisions are essential. In general, Staff Divisions will accomplish for the Offices those functions which can be done as well or better by Staff Divisions for the entire organization, enabling the Offices to devote maximum effort to operational problems. Specific relations between the Staff Divisions and Offices will be as follows:

- a. Staff Divisions will exercise Staff supervision over all AFSA activities pertaining to their several functions, with command authority only over their individual organizations.
- b. Staff Divisions will assist and advise the Offices and coordinate their activities within assigned responsibilities.
- c. Staff Divisions will consult the Offices on their ability to execute contemplated directives, and will give advance notice of contemplated directives whenever possible, in order to permit necessary preparations.

7. The Chiefs of Offices are responsible to the Director, through the Deputy Directors, as appropriate, for the performance of their missions. They serve as technical advisers on matters within their cognizance. They act through the appropriate Staff

Divisions on matters within the supervisory and coordinating authority of those Divisions. Specifically, the Office Chiefs will:

- a. Exercise command authority over their own units.
- b. Exercise operational control or operational direction over such field activities as may be specified.
- c. Recommend to appropriate Staff Divisions the issuance of technical directives for AFSA and the Department of Defense.
- d. Furnish advice and assistance concerning technical methods and procedures to the Director, to Staff Divisions, to other operating units, and to Service cryptologic organizations and units.
- e. Prepare plans, estimates, studies, and replies to requests for information.
- f. Coordinate their operational, technical, and administrative plans and activities with the appropriate Staff Divisions as required.

8. All elements of AFSA perform certain routine administrative functions necessary to carry out the basic specialized functions assigned to them. These routine administrative functions include maintenance of files and records, correspondence, personnel administration, general training, and supply. It is unnecessary to include such functions in the description of each of the elements, and they have therefore been omitted from this Manual except where there is need to indicate them specifically.
