- stated that the British have upwards of 5,000 fighter aircraft. The bombing of Germany is being carried out by 200-250 aircraft. The fighter pilots who have been through a training course in Canada are efficient. There are plenty of trainer aircraft there and they do not begrudge [aviation][2] fuel. Apparently the French Air Force airfield at ODINKAM [b] was bombed four times by the SAUSAGE-DEALERS
  [KOLBASNIKI] [17] but no serious damage was caused. He [c] considers the British figures of SAUSAGE-DEALER losses to be about right.
- In a few days the main forces of the General and he himself are setting off to conquer the French colonies. In addition to 5,000 French troops, British units are also /B; being sent/. The exact destination is being kept secret: it is possibly DAKAR or BIZERTA. The General is satisfied with the British equipment supporting the coming offensive operation. JERONE is remaining here.
- 4. THERAPEUTIST /TERAPEVT/ /v/ reports the following:

Out of 12 AVRO ANSON aircraft sent out from PREST/JICH airfield to homb the SAUSAGE-DEALERS only one returned, and out of 15 of the same type sent out from MINSTON only three returned. It is not known how many of the group sent out from LEUCHARS returned. The bomber pilots consider it a mistake to send these aircraft to bomb the SAUSAGE-DEALERS.
