Having trouble with finances? Did you know Pope has a Personal Financial Management Center and welcomes the opportunity to reacquaint people with their personal financial problems. Monday begins Personal Financial Management Week at Pope as proclaimed by the Military Airlift Command officials. The PFM program offers education, information, and counseling services. It's designed to increase the financial awareness of Air Force people. See related story on page 3.

With main chutes fully deployed, a Pope C-130 aircrew successfully makes a LAPES (Low Altitude Extraction Parachute System), dropping a M551 tank during the 18th Airborne Corps special capabilities exercise (CAPEX) last week at Sicily Drop Zone. Some 2,000 civilians and military spectators observed the operations of the Fort Bragg units, Military Airlift Command and

New computer ID system

DEERS starts at Pope today

The Department of Defense computer identification system starts at all North Carolina military installations today. The Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting system (DEERS) will be used to record and verify each applicant's eligibility for military health and medical care benefits. The DEERS project officer at Pope is 2nd Lt. Donna F. Bullard. For more information contact Lieutenant Bullard at 394-2486. See related story on page 2.

The Hercules Herald is an unofficial newspaper published weekly in the interest of personnel at Pope AFB, N.C. of Military Airlift Command. It is published by the Duval Publishing, Inc., Fayetteville, N.C., a private firm, in no way connected with the Department of the Air Force. Opinions expressed by publishers and writers herein are their own and are not to be considered an official expression by the Department of the Air Force. The appearance of ad-

Senate completes action on DoD Authorization pay bill

The senate has completed action on the fiscal year 1981 Department of Defense Authorization Bill. A major feature of the bill is a 11.7 percent pay raise for service members which is considered a critical first step in restoring military pay to the relative levels of comparability that existed with the private sector in 1982.

The senate version of the defense bill calls for the pay raise to be effective Oct. 1, 1980. A joint house/senate conference will have to be held on the authorization bill because the house version does not contain the special pay provisions. Other parts of the bill include:

Authorize $45 million for a one-year test program in various education incentives.

Extend current authority from Sept. 30, 1980, to Sept. 30, 1985, for the selected reserve enlistment and re-enlistment bonus and educational assistance programs.

Establish a system using a high-three-year average of basic pay for calculating retirement pay for members with less than ten years of service.

Require annual cost of living adjustments for retired military personnel, contingent upon the enactment of similar legislation for civil service annuitants.

Authorize an affiliation bonus for selected reserve units.

Exempt active-service members from paying monthly parking fees.

The Senate's bill also contained several provisions from the President's "Fair Benefits Package" that have been favorably reported by the House Armed Services Committee. They are:

Authorize a Family Separation Allowance for E-4s and below.

Eliminate the 74-cents-per-mile restriction on reimbursement for the shipment of mobile homes or trailers.

Increase the continental United States per diem rate from $35 to $50 per day and maximum high-cost per diem from $50 to $75 per day.

Permit the Secretary of Defense to pay a continuation bonus to officers with critical rated skills.

Increase the maximum enlistment bonus from $15,000 to $20,000.

Authorize a $600 bonus for individuals who enlist, re-enlist, or voluntarily extend in the ready reserve for three years.

Increase monthly CHAMPUS assistance for handicapped family members from $350 to $1,000.

Permit CHAMPUS immunizations for dependent children under age two.

It is anticipated the House/Senate Conference Committee will approve these actions already favorably reported by the House Armed Services Committee.

The Senate and House are recessed until July 21. The Conference Committee will meet sometime after then to resolve their differences.

ID system starts

A Department of Defense computer identification system will be implemented at all North Carolina military installations today. The system will effect all active duty and retired military personnel, their dependents and survivors.

The Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting system (DEERS) will be used to record and verify each applicant's eligibility for military health and medical care benefits.

Active duty and retired members are automatically enrolled in the DEERS program by respective military personnel centers.

Enrollment for dependents, however, is the responsibility of the sponsor, or of the eligible dependent of a deployed or deceased sponsor.

Although the responsibility to register dependents rests solely with the sponsor, usually the spouse is the person who requests any missing documents. Contact the Personal Affairs Office, 394-4308, for address of Vital Statistics Departments in the United States.

"Enrollment applications will be sent in a package to all retired Air Force members in the Pope-Ft. Bragg area," said 2nd Lt. Donna F. Bullard, DEERS project officer for Pope.

The applications must be mailed or brought in to the Pope AFB DEERS Processing Center, Bldg. 306, with originals or copies of birth certificates, marriage licenses, adoption orders, etc., to prove the dependents eligibility. All documents must have a raised seal or have the verification clearly identified.

The central enrollment center will be in the basement of Bldg. 306 and open Monday through Friday from 7:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. There will also be a mobile team to process enrollments in work areas.

Persons who are eligible for medical care, but have not registered with the DEERS program, must register as soon as possible or may be billed for the services administered to them for medical treatment.

"After full implementation of the system at military medical facilities, DEERS may eventually expand to verify eligibility of shoppers at the base exchange and commissaries," said the lieutenant.

For more information about the DEERS program call 394-2486.

Child Care Center rates increase

Weekly (25 hours) $14 first child

Many services offered

Financial Management Week starts Monday

The week of August 4-8 has been proclaimed by the Military Airlift Command as Personal Financial Management Week.

Pope's Personal Financial Management Center welcomes the opportunity during this week to emphasize and reacquaint you with the many personal financial services available to base people.

Many Air Force people may experience financial problems and from time to time may have difficulty making "ends meet". This situation is quite understandable in today's inflationary environment where pay raises may fail to keep pace with increases in the cost of living.

The Personal Financial Management Program is designed to increase the financial awareness of our Air Force people. By increasing the financial awareness we are providing an opportunity for you to maximize your purchasing power, thereby improving your standard of living. By alleviating or minimizing the everyday problems of financial concerns, we can possibly increase Air Force personnel satisfaction, enhance AF personnel productivity, and reduce work associated with bad checks, debt complaints, and emotional and human relations problems.

The PFM program offers education, information, and counseling services. The cornerstone of our educational services is a three-day, nine-hour course on personal financial management. The objective of the course is to provide a broad scope approach to the many decisions required by individuals and families which will affect their personal financial condition.

The course covers information on budget preparation, checkbook maintenance, consumer protection and credit interest rates, estate planning and other subjects relating to financial management and personal affairs. Guest speakers from base organizations and the local community such as the Legal Office, Credit Union, bank, Personal Affairs, and an insurance representative are presented throughout the course to provide you with information in their areas of expertise.

Our information service provides general and localized information on a variety of topics and news items relating to financial management. For example, consumer savings tips may cover such topics as checking accounts, credit sources, saving money on car insurance and so on. Inflation fighter articles will soon appear in the base newspaper providing information on such topics as cutting clothing and food costs, what credit costs, insurance and a host of other topics.

Our counseling service is designed to provide confidential financial guidance to people seeking personalized assistance in financial matters. To do this, our counselors work jointly with you on a "one to one" basis in a private environment to analyze your financial situation, pinpoint problem areas, formulate a budget and, if required, propose a payment plan. The emphasis of our counseling service is identification and resolution of financial questions and prevention of existing difficulties from recurring.

All of the counselors are trained volunteers with a sincere desire to help people with their financial concerns. Your dedicated PFM counselors on Pope are: Mr. Bill Kinlaw, SSgt Keith Myers, SSgt Robert Walker, ACM/2391; Major Dave Peterson, DOT/2853; Lt Richard Hymer, 1 AES/2688; Capt Wayne Ledett, DOC/4261; MSgt Rom Jones, LGT/2546 and Amn Kathy Lopez, DPME/4746. If you need counseling, contact any of our counselors.

If you want to take advantage of our information services or would like to attend the PFM education course, contact SSgt Keith Myers or SSgt Robert Walker at extension 2391. We are very interested in helping you solve your financial problems.

Early childhood seminar held

How can you help your child develop a good self-image? What is the most effective form of discipline for your child? What are the effects of military TDYs, remote assignments, and working parents on the development of children? These and similar questions will be considered at a Seminar on Early Childhood set for Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Pope Chapel. There is no cost for the seminar, but participants must register in advance. Call the Pope Chapel (394-2676) for information and registration.

The seminar is designed to provide information about the development of children from birth through school age. Ways children learn and their responses to various forms of parental guidance will be discussed, and various forms of adult actions designed to enhance personal, moral, cognitive, and social growth will be discussed. The purpose of the seminar is to inform parents and workers with children so that they may manage their youngsters in the most effective way possible. Actual and expecting parents, teachers, nursery people, babysitters and all who work with children will find the seminar helpful. Participation is open to anyone who wishes to attend.

The seminar leader will be Chaplain (Maj.) Gilbert Beeson. He is a member of the Pope chapel staff who has extensive interest and training in marriage and family life education. A clinical member of the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy, Chaplain Beeson holds an MS in Guidance and Counseling and is currently completing a graduate degree in Family Relations and Child Development. He has taught many courses and seminars in the field of family life.

TALCE

Have Module, will travel

By SRA Glenn Gage
317th TAW Public Affairs Division

SRA Jeff Peterson has logged in 450 days TDY in the past three years. SSgt. Paul Gonzales was away 40 days last year and Lt. Col. Charles Hamble went TDY 25 times in 1978.

Aircrews usually spend a lot of time away from home, but not when they're on "Roto." Who in the world has a job that keeps them away that much?

Pope Tactical Airlift Control Element technicians, that's who.

"An ALCE's mission is to deploy to non-Military Airlift Command bases and act as command and control for MAC aircraft operating here," said Colonel Hamble. Pope Tactical Airlift Control Element is a unit of the 317th TAW, which has six major joint Chiefs of Staff exercises each year plus an average of two smaller scenarios per month the remainder of the year. That keeps us pretty busy.

"We only have 21 people and simple addition tells you we're tasked about 30 times a year. This is a big reason our people are TDY so much. Also, we only have our officers so it's not unusual to have the same people on our missions. Our missions are assigned by 21st Air Force, although while here we work for the deputy commander for operations."

Reaction

"After receiving requirement, planning starts based on the size of the mission, the number of aircraft, the flow of aircraft and the maximum number of airplanes on the ground at any one

Setting up a TALCE module takes team effort as SSgt. Paul Gonzales, top, holds the top down as MSgt. Dave Loomis snaps it into place.

Team effort is evident as TALCE members, to r. Maj. Carl Goolbsy, SSgt. Paul Gonzales, Sgts. Gregory Rogers and TSgt. James Morrow hold up the front wall of the module unit, before its locked into place. The portable unit can be broken down quickly and stored in a relatively small area.

Making sure of the final power connection is MSgt. Dave Loomis after the module is ready to be fired up.

time. Based on these factors we develop a manpower package and logistics package," the colonel explains.

"We may have weeks to do this or a matter of days. Just recently we were tasked for an exercise at Hurter Army Airfield, Ga. The team we put together had to be assembled in three days. We were notified June 6 and had to deploy June 10. That team was commanded by an NCO.

Florida

"We were assigned an employment operation of 80 C-130 airlift missions at Eglin Auxiliary Field 6 in Florida. That facility is a bare-base. It has nothing but a runway.

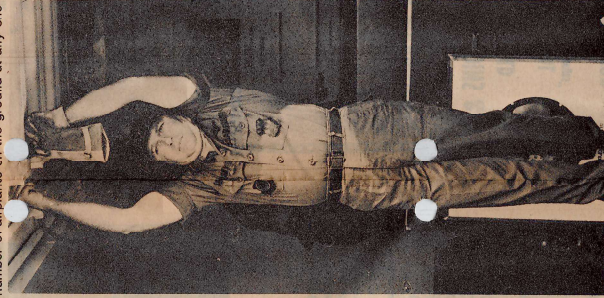

So we had to set up a mobile tower from the 5th Combat Communications Group at Robins AFB, Ga., a runway lighting set from 9th AF Logistics at Shaw AFB, S.C., our Transportable Command Post and various other pieces of equipment to make it an operational base.

"The package also consisted of a 78-man team which included ALCE command and control people, aerial porters and maintenance people. In this operation, we were actually inserted into the theater of operations by C-130s on a runway. Then controlled off-loading elements of the 82nd Airborne on 80 C-130 airlift missions in less than 28 hours.

"We were supporting the 82nd in a mock battle against a mechanized brigade. They started falling back as part of the scenario. Tanks kept running over our land-line and chewing it up so we had to resort to high-frequency radio communications. We were soon tactically removed before being over-run."

"Many of our exercises are of this nature," he continued. "We're usually the first unit in and last out in peacetime scenarios, because we're the command. Mostly though, in the interest of time and money, we use the facilities at the host base and add only what is unique to airlift such as a forklift or K-loader."

As the colonel completed his story, Maj. Hank Walker, chief of operations, interrupted. "Sir, I've just received a message that tasks Pope ALCE for exercise ReForGer." Another ALCE mission is underway.

Major Goolbsy stratches to tighten a light fixture inside the portable module after it has been erected and locked into place.

Seek legal assistance

General power of attorney requires caution

by Major Robert R. Gales
Acting Staff Judge Advocate

So you are preparing for overseas shipment or merely a brief in-country TDY or vacation and before you go you think you should obtain a general power of attorney for your spouse or friend "in case something comes up"—after all, doesn't everyone get one? Well, before you execute a general power of attorney, there are a few things you should be aware of about this normally easy to acquire legal document.

You should know of the consequences and inherent dangers involved in granting to others the almost unlimited power to act in your place and stead. The "blank check" function of the general power of attorney should be fully understood before executing one, for too often I have encountered airmen, both officers and enlisted, who have complicated legal problems which were caused almost entirely because of an uninformed, unintelligent execution of a general power of attorney.

A power of attorney is the designation of another individual (an agent) to act on behalf of the grantor (the principal) of the power (you, the person who signs the power) as your attorney-in-fact or personal representative. The general power of attorney gives such broad powers and authority to the attorney-in-fact that it can be a dangerous instrument in the hands of persons inexperienced in business matters, persons of unstable temperament, or anyone in whom the grantor does not have the utmost trust and confidence, such as a spouse with whom you are currently having marital troubles. It is a "blank check" which empowers the attorney-in-fact to take such actions as he or she deems desirable whether or not you would have thought them to be dangerous, foolhardy, and stupid.

One provision normally found in the general power of attorney is the following:

Further, I do authorize my aforesaid attorney-in-fact to execute, acknowledge and deliver any instrument under seal or otherwise, and to do all things necessary to carry out the intent hereof, hereby granting unto my said attorney-in-fact full power and authority to act in and concerning the premises as fully and effectually as I may do if personally present.

That provision has the effect of saying that the attorney-in-fact can do as he wishes in your name as though you yourself had personally been present and so acted. Nothing is withheld and no powers, actions, or activities are exempted.

A few weeks later you return from your trip only to find that you now have bills amounting to thousands of dollars, your car and house have been sold for a fraction of their worth, and your valuable stamp collection has been exchanged for an old set of golf clubs—and you don't even play golf. Of course you are going to march right down to someone—you are not quite sure to whom—and demand that the sales and exchanges be immediately voided as being unauthorized, unjustified, and illegal. Sorry about that! Another provision normally found in the general power of attorney is the one that says you can't change your mind after you learn of the actions taken in your name:

I further declare that any act or thing lawfully done hereunder by my said attorney shall be binding on my self and my heirs, legal and personal representatives and assigns.

This of course is not to suggest that a general power of attorney does not have its proper place among legal instruments. There are circumstances when it is not only appropriate but advisable to have one when the authority granted by a special power of attorney would be inadequate.

So, before requesting a general power of attorney seek the assistance of the Base Legal Office and discuss the dangers of executing such a document and ascertain whether or not a special power of attorney would be sufficient for your purposes. Think of the person to whom you would be giving this "blank check" and ask yourself if he or she can be relied upon to protect your assets.

Remember, haste or stubbornness now could result in my seeing you later in court.

39th TAS Open House draws record crowd

The huge crowd at the 39th TAS open house were treated to some unique flying skills as the pilots performed several different flying maneuvers during the air show portion of the open house. More than 350 people attended the annual event, making it one of the largest squadron open houses ever held at Pope. (USAF photo by Bob Bailey)

The 39th Tactical Airlift Squadron held their open house July 25 for all assigned people and their dependents.

The open house started with remarks from Col. Charles R. West, Deputy Commander for Operations and Lt. Col. John T. Payne, 39th TAS commander.

Afterwards, the 317th Tactical Airlift Wing mission briefing was presented to more than 200 people.

The people were then driven to Sicily Drop Zone on Fort Bragg where they witnessed seven 39th TAS aircrews demonstrate the capabilities of the C-130 Hercules aircraft.

Maj. Carl McPherson narrates 39th TAS Air Show during Open House. (USAF photos by Bob Bailey)

A Container Delivery System, Heavy Equipment and Personnel drops were demonstrated. A Low Altitude Parachute Extration System followed, before two aircraft flew a high speed-low speed pass over the drop zone while two others executed assault landings and take-offs on the Sicily Landing Zone.

After returning to Pope, approximately 100 people were taken on a static tour of a C-130. The open house came to a close at Pope Park where the 39th TAS hosted a picnic for some 350 people.
