

Did you know that chances are good that you could save a life even if you don't know how to swim. From a dock, raft or pool-side, lie down and try to reach a drowning person with your hand. Grasp the victim's wrist and pull him to safety. If you can't reach him, extend a shirt, towel, pole or branch to draw him in.

Dragon Team 4-80

Pope plays key role in joint exercise

Aircrews, aircraft and support people throughout the Military Airlift Command converged on Pope Monday to support Dragon Team 4-80, a joint Army-Air Force training exercise conducted at Elgin AFB, Fla. this past week.

Twenty-three C-141 Starlifters departed Pope Tuesday morning enroute to Elgin for a mass parachute assault by some 2,500 Army paratroopers from Fort Bragg, the largest personnel airdrop in recent history.

The parachute assault began at 8 a.m., Tuesday with 20 C-141s dropping personnel and three dropping heavy equipment. The mass drop was accomplished in one pass over the Elgin drop zone.

The capability of MAC C-130 Hercules forces were tested also when 21 of the four-engine turbo props returned the paratroopers to Fort Bragg yesterday and today, airdropping them into the Holland and Sicily drop zones.

Airlift units participating in the exercise were from the 21st and 22nd Air Forces, with the 21st Air Force, under the command of Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Sadler as the controlling headquarters. Both Air Forces are subordinate units of MAC, commanded by Gen. Robert E. Huyser, headquartered at Scott AFB, Ill. Fighter aircraft elements from the Tactical Air Command also participated in the exercise.

Chief's Corner

Chief Boatright praises Pope's maintenance folks

by CMSgt. Alvie W. Boatright

In my 30-plus years of Air Force experience, I have been associated with many maintenance organizations and I can say with a large degree of certainty, we have some of the best maintenance people in the world at Pope.

One thing I have learned in all these years is that it takes a special kind of person to be a maintenance troop. Although the efforts put forward are extremely evident in the on-time takeoff and safe flight of an aircraft, the long hours and difficulty involved in such an effort sometime hide the results.

The maintenance people from Pope perform outstandingly every day, and if I had but one wish, it is that they would take a minute to realize just what they do accomplish. Aircraft maintenance is harder today than at anytime in our recent Air Force history, and with the price of parts, the age of the aircraft, and the budget crunch, it is not expected to get any easier.

I have a great deal of pride in being associated with the finest maintenance complex in the world, and I want to publically give them a "JOB FANTASTICALLY DONE". Keep up the good work.

Pope people receive awards, congratulations for specific efforts.

Capt. Andrew M. Gessner, 317th Tactical Airlift Wing, was selected recently as a distinguished graduate of the U.S. Air Force's Squadron Officer School at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Captain Gessner competed with 587 students enrolled in Class 80-B and finished in the top 17 percent of his class. In addition, his selection for this distinguished honor was recommended by a review committee and approved by the SOS commandant.

Squadron Officer School is the first of the Air Force's professional military education schools whose mission is to prepare selected captains and lieutenants for those command and staff tasks required of junior officers.

Suggestion winners

SSgt. Wilbert G. Thornton, 317th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, received $430 for his suggestion of proposing a change in the adhesive used in the manufacture of the litter brackets and authorization to perform maintenance on brackets experiencing rubber pad separation.

Otis O. Butler, 317th Fire Department was awarded $150 for his suggestion to install an elbow valve to the fire extinguisher on the P-13 fire truck for safety purposes.

An award of $155 was received by A1C Donald J. Proulx, Jr., 317th Supply Squadron, for proposing that excess J-bars stored at base freight section be reissued to other bases. Two were shipped to Little Rock AFB, Ark., and 12 to McChord AFB, Wash., negating the purchase of new equipment.

MSgt. Richard E. Browning, 317th Civil Engineering Squadron, received a $100 award for his suggestion of building a cat-walk in the handball court to eliminate the building of a scaffold for bi-monthly maintenance on the lights.

An $85 award was presented to A1C Ellsworth L. Bennett, Jr., 317th Supply Squadron, for proposing a modification to the remote which allows five transactions to be entered on each AF Form 204-1. This will decrease daily usage from 200 to 40.

Amn. Mark A. Lingle, 317th Supply Squadron received $25 for his suggestion that base information required by newcomers be made available at the Fayetteville airport. The suggestion was adopted by the Base Intro Office and implemented by supplying key information to the Military Information Booth at the airport.

Supervisors have key retention role

Retention—An Open Letter To Supervisors

by Brig. Gen. William J. Mall, Jr.
Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel
Military Airlift Command

Retention is the biggest personnel problem facing the Air Force today. To stop our growing experience drain, Air Force leaders are waging a daily battle to improve our pay and benefits. But, are you doing your part to help?

Granted, you don't set the pay scales, but you do have an impact on your subordinates and how they view Air Force life.

As a supervisor, do you listen to your people? Do your workers understand the importance of their duties, not only in relation to the shop, but also to the mission of the Military Airlift Command and the Air Force? Do you properly conduct on-the-job training or do you call in "the guys who's always done it" to get the task done faster? The little things have a significant bearing on retention.

Do you keep your people informed so they can make proper decisions? If you can't explain the reason for what they're doing, maybe it shouldn't be done. Is your performance in line with your ability and do you set the proper example? Are you always on the lookout for better ways of doing things? Do you ask for help when you need it? Professionalism improves spirit, and spirit improves retention.

Military service won't make you wealthy, but it can make you rich. Rich in a professional sense, provided you recognize your value and that of the people you lead to the most vital of all causes—the defense of freedom around the world.

Pope was buzzing with activity this week as Gen. Robert E. Huyser, Military Airlift Command commander is greeted by Col. Robert B. Patterson, 317th Tactical Airlift Wing and U.S. Air Force Airlift Center commander, at Base Operations. The general participated in a joint Army-Air Force training exercise which departed from Pope enroute to Elgin AFB, Fla. where some 2,500 Fort Bragg paratroopers executed one of the largest mass personnel drops in recent history. (USAF photo by Cindy Burnham)

Returning officers say

Grass isn't tastier on other side

"The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence, but it is seldom any tastier."

This comment summarizes the feelings of an increasing number of officers who leave the Air Force but later return. Several of those coming back explained their reason in letters to the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center here.

Many expressed dissatisfaction with their civilian jobs. One returnee wrote, "A civilian career required massive dedication but returned minimal rewards." Working as a self-employed cafeteria owner, he told of working 12-16 hours per day and 30-60 days without a day off, only to realize no increase over his military pay and benefits.

A finance officer explained, "I was earning a good wage, but the pursuit of the dollar leaves one empty at the end of the work day. What I really desired was an occupation where I felt I was contributing to society in some other way than merely paying taxes."

One officer commented, "I came back because the civilian environment...did not offer me the challenges, or the spirit and camaraderie I have known in the service. And I came back because I love my country."

Another returning officer explained, "I was quite concerned initially about the substantial cut in pay I took to return to the Air Force. Commissary and BX privileges, 30 days leave per year, as well as...base housing...have made up a considerable portion of the pay decrease."

A returning technical officer stressed the financial security offered by a military career, "I found offers I was receiving falling short in compensation and responsibility. This fact coupled with a potential recession looming for the economy, made a return to the military a viable option for me." Another underscored this fact with, "In reality, there is no security for corporate officers...regardless of the quality of work."

Not all who return to active duty are taking a pay cut. Some are actually returning for the pay. "My present pay in the service is a slight increase," commented one. And another wrote, "You'll never get rich in the Air Force, but then most civilians aren't rich either."

One returnee said the Air Force should not discredit the civilian job market or claim that "things are not really that great on the outside because there are too many career fields that offer more than the Air Force. Besides, no one would believe it if you told them. I certainly didn't when I got out."

But the speaker, like many others, tried the civilian job market and came back to the Air Force way of life. (AFNS)

Officer selection for new program starts this fall

Looking for a challenging assignment or a change of pace? Ever wonder what your functional counterpart in civilian industry grapples with from day to day? If so, the Air Force Institute of Technology offers these opportunities through the Education with Industry Program.

Jointly sponsored by the Air Force and Industry, EWI is designed to develop effective management abilities and professional competence among participating mid-career officers. Captains and Majors are assigned to leading industrial firms and other civilian organizations throughout the United States. They serve mid-level administrative or technical management trainee capacities.

For ten months these officers are assigned to one of nearly 70 different civilian companies. Participants wear civilian clothes and work side-by-side with their counterpart in industry to achieve the host company's objectives. In turn, the student receives knowledge that can be applied to their Air Force specialty.

Presently 125 EWI positions are available in 20 career fields in 33 different options. The program is designed not only to enhance the knowledge of those officers who are currently within those career fields, but also to offer a cross-training opportunity for those who would like to enter certain disciplines, e.g. 27xx, 65xx, and 66xx.

Selection for the class that starts in September 1981 will be made by the AFIT Selection Board during the fall of 1980. To apply for entry into the program, write AFIT/RRE, WPAFB, OH, 45433, as soon as possible.

AFM 50-5, USAF Formal School Catalog, Vol 1, Page 4,25, outlines the application process. For more information call the Base Education Office, Maj. Roger Alexander, EWI program manager, autovon 785-3151, or the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center career monitor responsible for the specific option you are interested in.

MAC supplies Thailand

Military Airlift Command C-141 Starlifter transports today, July 2, began airlifting military equipment to Thailand in the wake of last week's Vietnamese attack on refugee concentrations and the villages across the Thai/Kampuchean border.

The MAC airlift was approved by President Carter following urgent Thai requests for accelerated delivery of the equipment, which had already been ordered and paid for under the foreign military sales program.

MAC's C-141s will deliver 47 tons of 105 millimeter howitzers, M-16 rifles and 106 millimeter recoilless rifles directly to Bangkok in the next several days. Ammunition items are being shipped by surface transportation.

At the present time, three MAC C-141 missions are scheduled. The Defense Department is checking the availability of additional items already on order, and will make further decisions on expedited delivery as the items are identified. A DoD spokesman said this process should be completed within the next few days. Six or seven MAC C-141 missions are expected to deliver the equipment already identified.

MAC units participating in the airlift are the 438th Military Airlift Wing, McGuire AFB, N.J., the 437th MAW, Charleston AFB, S.C. and Military Airlift Travis, Travis AFB, Calif.

Not satisfied yet

Americans want capable military

"The people of this country are insisting on military capability, ready now to perform difficult tasks in an uncertain world. They are not yet satisfied that the capability is there," said Under Secretary of the Air Force Antonio Handler Chayes.

Speaking to the summer graduating class of the Air Force Institute of Technology, she said the country justifiably is asking for a strong, flexible and highly capable military.

"Congress is prepared to devote more real resources to defense than have been available since the Vietnam War."

At the same time, she said, the American people have been slow to realize "it takes a decent level of pay and benefits to attract and retain people who can learn and who have learned to deal with the complex working of a technologically advanced armed forces."

Secretary Chayes said patriotism can only go so far, compensation is crucial to our armed forces.

"The administration has come now to a much better understanding of this fact, as illustrated by the president's support of Nunn-Warner (amendment) and CHAMPUS dental care," Secretary Chayes said.

One hundred thirty-five master of science and one doctor of philosophy degrees were awarded to the graduates. One hundred thirty of the graduates were from the AFIT's School of Systems and Logistics and six from the School of Engineering. (AFNS)

Soviets invest more in defense

"The Soviet effort equaled ours back in 1971 and now is greater by 50 percent," said Gen. Bryce Poe II, commander, Air Force Logistics Command.

Speaking to the Montgomery County Medical Society here, General Poe said as a result the Soviet Union has invested—over the decade—about $240 billion more in defense than the United States.

He said this differential exceeds the amount needed to acquire 1,000 F-16 aircraft, 1,000 F-18 aircraft, 10,000 XM-1 tanks, 20 guided missile cruisers, 50 nuclear-powered attack submarines, 20 Trident submarines with missiles, the entire M-X program and an estimated $70 billion in research and development.

The United States, resting on a clear strategic nuclear advantage, has let its conventional war fighting abilities lag over the past 10 years, he said.

He cited funding shortfalls for materials, lengthening lead times for production, inflation and shortages of critical raw materials and trained people as contributing to this country's lagging behind the Soviet Union in conventional fighting ability.

General Poe cited steps being taken to overcome some of the deficiencies, including an aggressive energy conservation program, modification of current aircraft and improvements in contracting methods to save money. He lauded AFLC's civilian force as "marvelously talented and resourceful."

"I do not think our fate is by any thinking sealed," General Poe told his audience of physicians. "Today we have impressively powerful armed forces but the trends are all wrong, seriously wrong, and we certainly have work to do. I don't think we are in a situation of getting it back in shape as much as we are in a situation of keeping in shape." (AFNS)

Pope Scouts end academy training

TSgt. Wayne L. King
317th Security Police Squadron

Two Law Enforcement Explorer Scouts from Pope AFB, Post 759 sponsored by the 317th

Security Police Squadron have completed a one week stay (June 22-27) at the N.C. Justice Academy, Salemburg, N.C., where they participated in a special program designed to better acquaint and prepare young men and women for a Law Enforcement career. They are Shawn D. Hindle, age 14, who attends Lewis Chapel High School, and the son of Capt. Eugene P. Hindle, 317th SPS Operations Officer, and Garry A. Guard, age 16, who attends Pine Forrest High School, and the son of Mr. Jackie A. Guard, Retired U.S. Army Special Forces, 1454 Mack St., Spring Lake, N.C.

Both Explorers entered into statewide competition for academy attendance. The prerequisites were stringent based on individual achievement and scholastic averages with the final selection appointing the top 25 Explorers in North Carolina for enrollment. Each day at the academy began at 6 a.m. with reveille and ended at 7:15 p.m. with retreat. Supervised study was held until lights-out at 11 p.m.

The weeks course of instruction was varied and ranged from constitutional law to criminal investigation with practical exercises in firearms safety and range qualification.

The graduation ceremony was conducted on June 27 with Capt. Hindle, guest speaker, addressing the class on the topic of "What is expected of a Police Officer." During the ceremony Garry Guard received special recognition for saving the life of a nonswimmer who had accidentally slipped into the deep end of the academy pool earlier in the week. Both Garry and Shawn relate they plan to attend next year's graduation and renew the friendships they have made.

Strategic balance needs correcting says General Ellis

Positive and immediate action is needed to change the deteriorating strategic balance between the Soviet Union and the United States, the Commander-In-Chief of Strategic Air Command told the Order of Daedalians flight here.

Gen. Richard M. Ellis said by correcting this strategic imbalance, it would "send a clear signal to the Soviets that this nation intends to remain a strong, effective leader in the international community."

"To my way of thinking, there are two distinct, although interrelated, courses of action that must be pursued by the United States in the decade ahead."

General Ellis said the most significant national defense issue facing this nation is the Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement. He called for the Senate to ratify Salt II as soon as feasible.

"Not because it is a flawless treaty...it is not--but because it would restrain active Soviet weapons production lines. In addition, it also would allow us to measure--in a tangible way--their willingness to cooperate."

General Ellis said the second course of action calls for the continuing need to upgrade our strategic forces and develop "badly needed" follow-on systems.

Quoting Secretary of State Edmund Muskie during his confirmation hearings, General Ellis said, "We must maintain the military balance. We must continue to modernize all elements of our defense forces."

General Ellis recognized that providing funds to build and maintain all elements of our defense structure is extremely difficult in today's tight economic environment.

"One of the major defense problems we now face...and will continue to face throughout the 1980's is: Money...or, more specifically the lack of."

General Ellis said the military needs money to keep U.S. logistical supply lines moving efficiently and insure the proper types and quantities of spare parts. Money is needed to eliminate a growing backlog of badly needed operational and maintenance projects. Money is needed to upgrade and modernize selected elements of the current force structure. Money is needed to develop and deploy new weapon systems.

"Finally and of the greatest importance, additional money must be allocated so that we can adequately compensate our people and retain the top quality men and women needed to sustain the high degree of readiness our mission demands," General Ellis said. (AFNS)

Some of the 2,500 Fort Bragg paratroopers relax before boarding the C-141 Starlifters prior to their departure to Elgin AFB, Fla. during the Dragon Team 4-80 exercise. The paratroopers returned today in C-130 Hercules, and airdropped in to the Holland and Sicily drop zones on Fort Bragg.

USAF photos by Sally Pender

Lined up on the Green Ramp at Pope and awaiting the order to take off are these C-141s Tuesday morning. Each aircraft was loaded with Fort Bragg paratroopers, equipment or media people for the one-hour flight to Elgin AFB, Fla.

Editor's note: Next week the Hercules Herald will take an in-depth look at Dragon Team 4-80.

They took off at approximately 30-second intervals Tuesday morning until all 23 C-141s had departed Pope. The exercise was held to demonstrate airborne readiness during a joint Army-Air Force effort. The parachute operation was the largest of its kind in recent history and was executed in one pass over the drop zone.

Center celebrates its 21st year this month

Bowling has been long enjoyed by people nation-wide and this month the base Bowling Center celebrates its 21st year at Pope.

The Bowling Center was built in 1959 in an old parachute rig building where the new Security Police building is now located. It consisted of six lanes.

In July 1974, the Bowling Center moved to its present location adjacent to the Base Gymnasium. It has 16 lanes. "We have requested four additional lanes to be constructed during the next fiscal year," said Charlie Norris, Bowling Center manager.

"The new facility is located where an old balloon hanger was approximately 1955," Norris recalls. Norris has been the manager of the Bowling Center since Pope opened its first lanes. "I believe we have one of the nicest facilities in the Air Force.

Improvements

"We have made several changes to the facility within the past year.

"We redecorated the walls on the outside lanes which used to be painted white. We hung blue and gold acoustical draperies to prevent the glare the bowlers faced with the white walls.

"Energy conservation is another change our facility has experienced. We installed low voltage lighting, changing from a 750 voltage quartz light to a 100 voltage light. We received a certificate from Headquarters Military Airlift Command for reducing energy consumption."

In August the lanes are expected to be resurfaced for the winter leagues which start in September. In addition, new pins will be placed in the pin spotter machine.

Equipment

"We have a pro shop located in the center that contains a full-line of bowling balls, shoes and bags. We also do bowling ball drilling and plugging.

"Outside the pro shop we have bowling balls on stands for bowlers to use if they don't have their own. These are 6 to 7 pound balls for young children (under age of 5). They are classified as beginner's balls," Norris said.

All other balls range from 8 to 16 pounds in weight.

To keep the balls shining like new, a coin-operated ball conditioner is available for ball polishing. "You can polish a ball for as little as 25 cents," Norris stated. "It can cost you up to $1 depending on how high of a shine you want on the ball. You have to keep your ball clean in order to bowl good," Norris remarked.

Snack Bar

The Bowling Center has a snack bar for bowlers or visitors to buy breakfast, lunch or a fast sandwich meal. "I believe this is the cheapest snack bar on base," Norris said.

"We have eggs, sausage, bacon, ham, grits and other food items available on our breakfast menu. For lunch we serve toasted cheese, rib-eye steak, shrimp, chicken and other food items. These are sold at very reasonable prices," he said.

Another snack bar is located at the ball field adjacent to the base Gas Station. "This facility has done very good this year, Norris said.

"Last year the center had red pin bowling throughout the summer. This year we have reduced the cost to 50 cents per game and will resume red pin bowling this month.

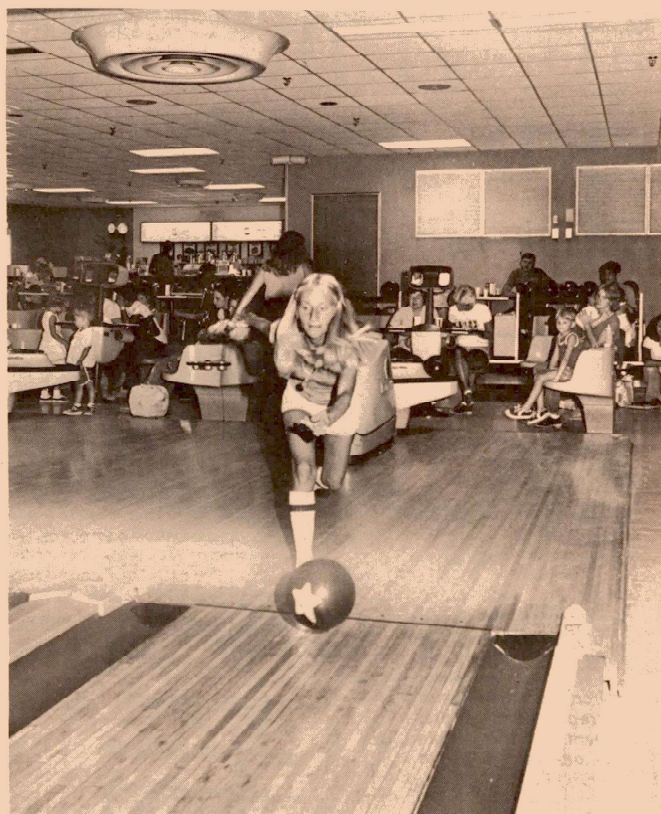

A no-tap bowling tournament is played each Saturday night at 7. On occasion (once a month) beverages are reduced during no-tap. Following no-tap, moonlight bowling or scotch doubles is available.

During the past 21 years, no bowler has managed to score a 300 game. This is the highest score any bowler can achieve in one game. "Many people have come close," Norris said, "scoring as high as 298 and 297 on our lanes."

The hours of operation for the Bowling Center are 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Saturday and noon to 11 p.m., on Sunday and holidays. The snack bar closes at 10 p.m. each day.

For more information about bowling activities on base, call the Center at Ext. 2891.

Finals

Henry's then met Ennis Supply in the semi-finals to see who would play the Falcons.

Ennis Supply took an early advantage against Henry's which they held for a 12-10 victory. This put Ennis Supply against the Falcons for the championship.

The supply team started off with an early 7-4 lead after four innings of championship play.

In the fifth, Foster took an 8-7 lead, but Pope was ahead 13-8, at the end of the sixth.

In seventh inning action, both teams scored twice and the Falcons won the tournament.

During the weekend tournament the Falcon team hit more than 60 home runs and now have a supporting 50-21 record for the season.

Falcons win Independence Tourney

By Jerry France
Falcon coach

The Pope Falcons won first place in this past weekend's Independence tournament defeating second place Ennis-Agri Supply 15-10 here. Twelve teams entered the round robin and double elimination tournament.

Although rain dampened the fields Friday the teams were ready to play ball. The Falcons led the opening game throughout against the Tar Heels of Fayetteville and beat them 20-3.

The Falcons met Tyndall's Electronics from Coats, N.C., in what seemed to be a nip-tuck type of game. Pope took a 17-12 victory against the stubborn, but determined Tyndall's team.

Snappy Jack's played Pope next, and gave Pope their only loss of the tournament by narrowly defeating the Falcons 16-14.

In the Falcon's fourth game of the opening day, Pope edged a defensive Med-Ac team 5-4.

Play continues Saturday

The round robin competition continued Saturday with the Falcons playing against a tough Yaddin Road Merchants team from Fayetteville.

Both teams entered the game with a 3 and 1 record in the tournament with the losing team facing elimination from the tournament.

The Falcons started out the first inning with a 8-0 lead over the Merchants. Don Nielan doubled up the middle, Jerry Foster singled and Bill Brown batted a homer. Gary Janelli blasted the ball up the middle for a double, Ron Perkins walked and John Lewis and Mark Spencer both chipped in with homers.

The Merchants drove in six runs in the bottom of the first to keep pace with the Falcons.

In the second inning Pope got another eight runs and the Merchants drove in two runs.

The rest of the game went pretty much the same way. When it was all over Pope had a 34-17 victory.

Defeating the Merchants, the Falcons entered the double elimination tournament.

Double Elimination Tournament

The Falcons squared-off against Ennis-Agri Supply in the first game and came away with a hard earned 10-9 victory.

In another game, the Falcons faced Henry's Body Shop. Henry's had defeated Tyndall's 11-6 a game before.

The Falcons went down in order in the first inning. However, this was not the case with Henry's as they sent 16 men to the plate causing the Falcon coach to bring in Jerry Long to relieve Larry Barbour from the pitcher's mound. Before Long came in to relieve Barbour Henry's had accumulated a score of 13-0.

The Falcons started the next inning with Brown hitting a single followed by a homer by Janelli. At the end of the inning Pope had come within six points of catching up to the Henry's team.

The Falcons, (still behind by six), saw singles by Foster, Brown and Janelli. Wayne Sears slashed a line drive beyond the center field fence and John Lewis hit a three run homer to push the score to 13-12.

Pope defeated Henry's 31-24 and advanced to the finals.
