To the Men and Women of the Military Airlift Command:

I will soon bring to a close a military career which has spanned almost four decades. It has been especially gratifying to me to serve as your Commander in Chief. You are dedicated patriots who have proved time after time that you are equal to the great challenges of our vital mission. You exemplify our nation's principles; trust in God, service to the nation and liberty and justice for all. I salute you and wish you Godspeed.

New advisor -

'...it's going to be a very challenging job'

By A1C. Andrew Knef

Pope's new Wing Senior Enlisted Advisor, CMSgt. Robert C. Miller, views his role as that of an intermediary between the wing commander and Pope's enlisted force.

"I think it's going to be a very challenging job," said the Lake View, South Carolina native, who comes to Pope from Headquarters, Air Defense Tactical Air Command, Colorado Springs, Colo. Chief Miller assumed his new duties June 15.

"I know that I will be getting involved with people problems," Chief Miller added. "I fully intend to find the solutions that will make enlisted men and women's stay at Pope more rewarding."

Chief Miller said that he prefers to get out among the troops and handle their problems on a one on one basis.

"I would ask people to give their supervisors, first sergeants and commanders first chance to solve the problem," Chief Miller said. "If they're still not satisfied, my door is always open."

Chief Miller joined the Air Force in 1955, coming up through the aircraft maintenance field. He worked on C-119's at Pope as an airman, moving on to the maintenance of Minuteman and Titan missiles.

Chief Miller was awarded the Bronze Star for service with the 31st Tactical Fighter Wing in Vietnam.

Chief Miller's wife, Helen, works at Pope base supply. His son, Greg, is a senior majoring in business finance at the University of Oklahoma.

"It's been a very rewarding career," said Chief Miller. "The Air Force is full of super people and I've had the chance to meet a lot of them."

Squadron donates blood to help member's sister

A call for help was delivered to the 1943rd Communications Squadron recently when SrA. Janet Wilkes mentioned to several squadron members that her sister had been admitted to Cape Fear Hospital.

Her sister was hemorrhaging and was using more blood than her family could compensate for. Airman Wilkes turned to the one place that could help.

Members of the squadron were quick to react. They organized a blood drive arranging for people to arrive at the hospital at staggered intervals. The plan was to keep the squadron functioning as usual and allow enough members to donate but not back up people in the hospital corridors.

Airman Wilkes later said that her sister was doing better and thanked the squadron for their efforts in easing bad situation.

Degrees presented

Dean Kenneth E. Tempelmeyer of the Southern Illinois University-Carbondale College of Engineering and Technology conferred degrees on 26 graduates during commencement ceremonies here Wednesday.

Bachelor of science degree graduates at the ceremonies were:

Keith N. Altshuler, Donald N. Arendt, Edwin O. Artis, Gregory L. Cartee, Glaude Dalton, Jr., Glenn M. Davis, Rose M. Desgroseillers, Darwin E. Douglas, Robert H. Edens, Marshall H. Fitzgerald, Jimmy E. Hammonds, Richard E. Hingson.

Money rolls in for good ideas

Mr. James Tevis, 317th Civil Engineering Squadron was presented a check for $30 for suggesting a device to keep the fire hose separated and in position on the P-12 Pumper.

Mr. Charles A. Dixon of the 317th Services Squadron suggested that venetian blinds removed from buildings being renovated be sold to Property Disposal at Fort Bragg rather than taken to the landfill. His idea earned him an extra $25.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to six suggestors for their support of the suggestion program. SSGt. Adderson S. Springer, 317th Headquarters Squadron; Sgt. Thomas S. Jacyszyn, 1943rd Communications Squadron; A1C. Cesar Mejias, 3rd Mobile Aerial Port Squadron; TSgt. Maston Howze, Detachment 1, 507th Tactical Air Control Wing; SSGt. James Barrett, 317th Supply Squadron and Mr. Charles Dixon, 317th Services Squadron, received certificates.

Recreational vehicles parking restricted

Due to critical parking space, area appearance and safety of pedestrians on Pope, base housing has imposed certain restrictions on the parking and storing of recreational vehicles in the base housing area.

According to Air Force Regulation 125-14: Boats, trailers and other towed vehicles will be stored in the recreational storage lot. Registration for the storage lot will be at the Security Police desk.

Any requirement for the use of recreational vehicles as a supplemental living area must go through the base housing officer for approval by the base commander.

Contact Mr. Raynor, Base Housing manager, for more information at Ext. 4820, Bldg. 342.

Children's safety restraints available

Each year more than 4,000 children die in automobile accidents, the single leading cause of death among children less than 14 years old.

At least 70 percent of these deaths would not have occurred if the child had been properly restrained at the time of the accident, according to the University of North Carolina Highway Research Center. Tests have proven a parent's hold is easily broken in a slow, 20 to 25 mile per hour collision.

The answer lies in special restraint devices which offer small children the greatest and most effective protection in an accident. These devices should be used for children less than 40 pounds.

Presently, Pope Family Services has five child restraints which can be signed out free for a six-month period and will accommodate a child weighing up to 20 pounds. For more information about this test program call Ext. 2119.

Fireworks pose danger

Fireworks, for all their patriotic associations, present a serious safety hazard. The Consumer Product Safety Commission estimates that more than 8,000 people were treated in emergency rooms as a result of fireworks injuries last year.

Horseplay with fireworks has resulted in near blindings and severe burns at Pope in the past.

In North Carolina the use of fireworks is illegal. Wing safety officials suggest that those planning to celebrate the Fourth of July with fireworks closely supervise the activity.

Gen. Huyser bids farewell to MAC

By Gen. Robert E. Huyser commander in chief, MAC

During the final two years of my active-duty military career, I have had the exceptional privilege to be your commander in chief. I thank you for your full support and your dedication to serving America, the greatest nation on earth.

Since assuming command, I have seen such dedication increase daily. As a result, we have met many difficult challenges together with unparalleled success, and we have projected the spirit of America continuously all over the world.

We have made progress also on vital issues which affect our ability to serve our nation. Our number one priority is people, and there have been significant improvements in military compensation. In addition, funds for maintenance, spare parts, supplies, training and force modernization have been forthcoming recently.

These improvements which are essential to rearming America were mandated by those responsible citizens who exercised their right to vote and to inform their elected representatives. Consequently America has entered an era of renewal.

You, the patriotic members of the Military Airlift Command, were in the vanguard of that group. However, the exercise of citizenship is a continuous, lifelong process. Furthermore, many more improvements need to be made and the transition may not be so smooth. Therefore, I urge you to continue to actively participate in running our great democratic republic. Few in the world are so privileged.

As I transfer command to a friend and a fine American, Gen. James R. Allen, I do so with every confidence that you will give him the same full measure of support that you have given me. America can afford no less.

God bless you.

Commander's Forum, Clinic appointments working well

Col. Edsel R. Field

If you have a question or recommendation you want to bring to my attention, dial 4357 (HELP). Your message will be recorded and your question with answer will be published in the newspaper or will be answered personally as soon as practicable. Please clearly give (or spell) your name to insure a reply. If you request anonymity, your name will not be used in answer preparation. I would like to use this column, however, to select those questions which pertain to more than the individual involved.

Locked restrooms

Everytime I plan an outing with my family to Pope Park, or even to the ball park to watch my son play, my daughter has to go to the bathroom. So far when we went to the bathrooms they have been locked. I feel something ought to be done about this.

The latrines at the Youth outdoor facilities are open when scheduled ball games are played. The ballfield latrines by the base gym were not opened until May 26 when the first scheduled intramural games began. Pope Park facilities have been open since the first of April. However, the present locking system on all the outdoor latrines allows the doors to be locked from inside then closed so that they cannot be opened without a key. Civil engineers have been requested to change the locks.

Speeders beware

I live in base housing and speeding through this area is quite a problem. I have seen several near misses of children and I have actually witnessed dogs being run over by people who are doing a lot more than 10 miles per hour. The security police come out and they write a bunch of citations but it just doesn't seem to help because they can't be there all the time. I would like to know what would be the possibility of getting speed bumps or something like that to install in the housing area to slow these speeders down. It's getting to be a real problem and when a kid gets hit or killed it is going to be a little too late.

I share your concern about the safety of children in the housing areas. The security police randomly use speed measuring equipment to cite speeders. You can assist in the enforcement effort by submitting a statement to the security police concerning unsafe acts you observe. Describe the incident and give the time, date, location and license number. The individual's commander will be notified.

Your suggestion to utilize speed bumps is appreciated, however the speed bumps are often a safety hazard and always cause drainage and maintenance problems.

The bottom line is that our security police will increase surveillance in the housing area during these summer months, however, we need your help to make our housing areas safe. I much prefer those habitual speeders to find themselves walking than risk injury or even loss of life to our people.

Clinic appointments

I am calling about the appointments at Pope Clinic. It seems they only take appointments for a week in advance and after that they have some kind of waiting list to get appointments for the following weeks because they don't know what doctors will be on the staff. It seems to me that doctors should have regular working hours just like anyone else. I mean, they don't get off every other week or anything like that do they?

The Pope Clinic has an appointment system that is working well. Patients who call requesting an appointment with any physician will generally be seen within 24-48 hours. Emergency or urgent patients will always be seen the same day. Patients requesting an appointment with a specific doctor will most often be scheduled within five to ten working days. At the present time it has not been necessary to schedule patients more than one or two weeks in advance.

There is a continuous waiting list for non-active duty optometry appointments. At times there is also a waiting list for well baby checkups with our one pediatric nurse practitioner. We also get occasional backups for Pap testing with our one obstetric/gynecological nurse practitioner.

The waiting list system is designed for patient convenience and fairness. Once a person is on the waiting list they will be notified by the clinic as soon as the appointment they wanted becomes available. Our job is to provide you the best possible service given our limited manning. If anyone has any further questions or suggestions concerning the appointment system please direct them to the Patient Affairs Office at the clinic at Ext. 2182.

Money, PFMP offers alternatives to financial problems

By A1C. Andrew Knef

In 1975, a tri-annual Air Force survey determined that 51 percent of Air Force members have difficulty making ends meet.

Two years later, the Personal Financial Management Program, an Air Force-wide attempt to encourage an increased awareness of financial management on the part of military and civilian people, was introduced at Pope.

"A troop that's under financial pressure cannot perform on his or her job," said 2nd Lt. Linda F. Jones, deputy accounting and finance officer. Lieutenant Jones is the assistant project officer for the program. "How can someone perform at their desk or in the shop when all they are thinking of is 'how to make a care payment?'," she added.

The program is broken into education, information and counseling phases, explained Lieutenant Jones.

The Comptroller is the staff agency tasked with the primary implementation of the program, which receives additional input support from a council of Pope units, including Social Actions, Chaplain Services, Legal Aid and Public Affairs.

"We're attempting to train eight counsellors to conduct seminars on various aspects of financial management," Lieutenant Jones said.

Some of the subjects that would be covered at the seminars include using newspapers to plan financial strategy, balancing a checkbook, planning a budget and establishing credit.

Another important feature of PFMP is confidential counselling, but additional NCO counsellors are needed in this capacity, according to Capt. Martha K. Moorhouse, accounting and finance officer.

Financial wizards

"We're not looking for financial wizards, but people with a desire to help other people," said Captain Moorhouse.

The counsellors, she explained, would help someone develop a program of planned spending.

"We have a plan for everything else in the Air Force. We need a plan for spending money as well," Captain Moorhouse said.

All consultation would be on a one on one basis and strictly confidential, she added.

Captain Moorhouse has seen the benefits of the program firsthand. She recalled the case of an airman first class who was able to save $8,000 at the end of three years by following a personalized spending plan.

Lieutenant Jones is primarily responsible for coordinating counselling services for PFMP. Confidentiality is the key to a successful program, she said.

"A lot of people are embarrassed to come forward," Lieutenant Jones said. "They don't realize that any counselling they might receive is strictly confidential.

"Nothing goes in the records," she continued. "If I see you on the street I will say hello, but I will never mention your problem. I'll never call your squadron and ask why you didn't show up for an appointment."

Voluntary basis

All appointments, explained Lieutenant Jones, are on a voluntary basis.

"Sometimes the first sergeant will strongly recommend that a troop seek help, but the troop must come in of his or her own free will," added Lieutenant Jones.

Occasionally financial problems are of a nature that must be referred to base agencies like Social Actions or Legal Assistance.

Legal assistance

Legal assistance is rendered by attorneys to military members and their families in areas like the preparation of wills, divorce, child custody and taxes.

Lieutenant Jones views the lack of clear-cut financial goals and poor management practices as the major financial downfall of military members.

"The bottom line is, don't let what you have going out be more than what you have coming in," said Lieutenant Jones. "Mismanagement is when a couple buys a $250 a month apartment instead of shopping around for one that might fulfill all their needs and only cost $180 a month.

Bad check writing

"Most people," Lieutenant Jones added, "take the first thing they find."

One of the most serious aspects of financial mismanagement is bad check writing. This practice destroys credit and puts the offender in jeopardy of civil prosecution.

As far as the Air Force is concerned, bad checks are big trouble. Air Force Regulation 35-18 states that all Air Force members must meet their financial responsibilities. Failure to do so, such as a repeated history of bad check violations, is indeed justification for discharge from military service.

Captain Moorhouse emphasized that commanders should not use PFMP as a punishment for bad check offenders. The program was designed, not for punitive use, but as a rehabilitative measure, she added.

One positive way of more effectively utilizing financial resources is the sure pay system, said Captain Moorhouse.

Under a signed agreement between the Federal Reserve and the Treasury Department, all banks insured by the Reserve must guarantee the deposit of your paycheck on the day it is issued.

"Ninety percent of our pay problems come from people who don't use sure pay," said Captain Moorhouse. "With the old system there was no way I could guarantee your check would be in your mailbox on payday."

A lost check, explained Captain Moorhouse, must be reclaimed through the Treasury Department--a process that can take up to three months.

Sure Pay system

With sure pay there is no need for waiting in line on payday or worrying about your check while on a temporary duty assignment, Captain Moorhouse added.

Both financial institutions located on Pope, the First Citizen's Bank and the Pope Federal Credit Union, utilize the sure pay system, as do all other banking institutions in the local area.

One of the services offered by the Credit Union is share draft checking with no minimum balance or service charges. Share drafts currently pay six percent interest.

Credit background

Unsecured and collateral loans are also available.

"We serve a vital function helping young troops establish a credit background," said Mr. Bernie Parks, General Manager of the Pope Federal Credit Union.

"Usually if they go to a finance company without credit, that finance company will send them right out the door," Mr. Parks continued. "We recognize that we have a lot of young people that don't have established credit."

Financial problems cut across lines of rank and position. They affect the mission of the Air Force on the most fundamental level--in the troubled minds of its members.

According to Social Actions' case reports, financial difficulties sometimes lead to even more complex problems involving drugs, alcohol and child and wife abuse.

Call for appointment

Appointments for financial consultation and information about the Personal Financial Management Program can be obtained by contacting 2nd Lt. Linda F. Jones at Ext. 2202.

The Military Airlift Command has designated the last week in July as PFMP week. Activities will include a library display, information box and two to three days of seminars on subjects ranging from tax insurance investment to preventive law.

Colonel Lindbo leaves 41st TAS

Command of the 41st Tactical Airlift Squadron will pass from Lt. Col. Don A. Lindbo to Lt. Col. Bob L. Mitchell at a change of command ceremony on Thursday at 3 p.m. Col. Edsel R. Field, 317th Tactical Airlift Wing commander, will preside at the change of command which will take place in the 41st Squadron briefing room. 41st TAS members will host a reception in the squadron immediately following the ceremony.

Colonel Lindbo has served as the unit's commander for two years. Prior to assuming command of the 41st, he had been the squadron operations officer. The change of command occurs on the heels of Colonel Lindbo's leading his Squadron through a pre-eminently successful 60-day European rotation at Mildenhall RAF station in England where deployed aircrew and maintenance personnel set a new standard of excellence for rotational squadrons.

Looking back at the unit's many accomplishments over the past two years, Colonel Lindbo stated that, "My association with the 41st TAS has been exceptionally rewarding in every respect and has certainly been a highlight of my career. It's been a great pleasure to command such an outstanding group of professionals."

Pending reassignment, he will serve as assistant to the 317th deputy commander for operations. Colonel Lindbo is a native of Rolla, N.D. and is married to the former Beverly Severson of Grand Forks, N.D. They reside in Fayetteville with their son, Christopher, and daughter, Carrie.

Colonel Mitchell comes to the 41st from the 40th TAS where he has served as the squadron operations officer since Feb. 13. He came to Pope in 1979 after completing a tour at the Pentagon.

Store, handle flammable liquids with caution

The improper use and storage of flammable liquids has resulted in many fires and explosions in the past with tragic loss of life and heavy property damage.

Where flammable liquids are stored or handled, the elimination of all sources of ignition is paramount. Some common ignitors are smoking, striking of matches, static electricity and sparks from electrical equipment.

Refueling lawn mowers with motors running or while the motor is still hot is another frequent cause of ignition.

Paints, varnishes, alcohol and other flammable liquids should be stored in tightly closed containers to prevent leaks and spills.

When any flammable liquid is used, stored, or handled, adequate ventilation is essential to preclude a hazardous vapor-air concentration. Store all flammable liquids in special storage buildings or outdoor metal storage lockers.

Flammable liquids should be used for their intended purpose and not as cleaning agents.

Men win battle of sexes, women ready for next year

By 2nd Lt. Linda Nicholas

About 100 children and adults showed up for the festivities at the Battle of the Sexes Saturday. The men's team came out on top, but not without some stiff competition from the women.

Ronald McDonald® started the day off with an expression of thanks towards the Pope Junior Officer's Committee for sponsoring the event to raise money for the Ronald McDonald® House (TM).

A total of $295 was collected before Saturday. The Pope Clinic contributed $73 and 317th Services Squadron collected $60 from their dunking booth. The 1st Aeromedicalical Evacuation Squadron and the JOC contributed the money they raised from their concession booths.

The women's team gave the men a run for their money on every event, including the tough obstacle course. The men gave the women a hard time on the hoola hoop race but the dress up relay disproved the notion that women are slow dressers.

Second Lt. Evelyn Nunez, the women's team captain, commented that, "This year's competition was close, but next year's outcome will definitely be different."

SSgt. Clarence Nicholas remarked, "The men would have won even if they didn't show up."

SSgt. Mary E. Clark made it unmistakably clear that, "This year's battle was just a warm up for us. So look out next year."

Second Lt. Julia Holcomb added to her previous statement by saying, "This year we were invincible, next year victorious."

Sunburns, poses health problems

By Capt. Buddy Clayton
USAF Clinic

Our "a tan is healthy" society will produce millions of sun-worshippers again this season, all of whom will receive their share of ultraviolet ray exposure.

Unfortunately, many will go about their task unwisely and pay the price in sunburn, heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

Sunburn, known medically as erythema solare, may appear as anything from a slight reddening of the skin to severe blistering. In some cases, fever, chills and nausea may occur from toxic effects of the burn.

The danger from sunlight is chiefly due to the effects of ultraviolet rays which are not visible to the human eye. The danger increases somewhat near water, sandy beaches or any expanse of reflective surface such as the flightline. Exposure to ultraviolet radiation is increased when the rays are reflected.

Clouds absorb very little ultraviolet radiation and severe burns are still possible on cloudy days when a person is less likely to take precautions.

Blonds, redheads and other fair-skinned individuals are particularly susceptible to sunburn and must take added precautions. Care must also be taken to protect an infant's delicate skin.

Sunburn can be prevented by gradually increasing exposure during the early summer. It is recommended that exposure begin with a maximum of 10 minutes exposure a day, gradually increasing to an hour a day over one month's time. The exact schedule should be dictated by the individual's sun tolerance.

Prolonged exposure, without burning, may be accomplished if a lotion containing an effective sunscreen is used. The most effective sunscreens contain Para Amino Benzoic Acid or PABA and are rated on an effectiveness scale of one to fifteen. A rating of fifteen indicates that the lotion contains the highest degree of ultraviolet screening potential.

Once burnt, some relief can be obtained from topical pain killers and by taking cool showers. There are several, very effective, spray pain killers on the market.

In addition to the danger of sunburn, prolonged exposure to the sun may result in permanent skin damage, including skin cancer, and in some cases, the skin may become very rough and warty. The development of pimple-like sores which do not heal should be brought to the attention of a physician.

Warmer weather also increases the risk of heat exhaustion and heat stroke. Heat exhaustion results from the loss of fluids and disruption of the salt-water balance of the body (electrolytes) due to excessive perspiration. It can be treated by restoring nutrients with liquids that include electrolytes.

Heat stroke is a life-threatening condition in which the central body temperature may rise to 106-108 degrees due to the body's inability to perspire. This condition may be increased by alcohol, age, climate, drugs or a body defect. In the treatment of heat stroke it is imperative that body temperature be reduced as quickly as possible. External cooling or ice water enemas are effective means of accomplishing this.
