Pope displays airlift capabilities

Vice President visits Pope, Fort Bragg

Vice President George Bush boarded an engine-running C-130 on Pope's green ramp seconds after arriving here Feb. 5 on Air Force Two.

Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Sadler, 21st Air Force commander, and Col. Edsel R. Field, 317th Tactical Airlift Wing commander, welcomed the vice president to Pope. Also on hand to greet the vice president were Lt. Gen. Jack V. Mackmull, commander XVIII

Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg and Maj. Gen. James J. Lindsay, 82nd Airborne Division commander.

After boarding the C-130 Hercules with Colonel Field and 64 82nd Airborne Division paratroopers, Vice President Bush was flown to Sicily Drop Zone for an assault landing.

The vice president observed demonstrations of the low altitude parachute extraction system, heavy equipment drops and a mass personnel drop of about 630 paratroopers and equipment from 10 C-130s and six C-141s.

He later visited various Fort Bragg facilities.

Before boarding his jet and proceeding to Cape Canaveral, Fla. and the Kennedy Space Center, Vice President Bush was presented by Colonel Field with a framed picture of a C-130 formation from the men and women of the 317th Tactical Airlift Wing.

The vice president departed Pope about 12:20 p.m.

Wing officials said that Gen. James R. Allen, commander in chief of the Military Airlift Command called from headquarters MAC, Scott AFB, Ill., and expressed his thanks to everyone involved in the vice president's visit for "A job well done."

Pastor cites need for prayer

Pope hosts prayer breakfast

Pope took part in the National Prayer Breakfast Feb. 4 with a local observance at the Noncommissioned Officers' Club.

Guest speaker, Dr. James Cammack, pastor of Snyder Memorial Baptist Church in Fayetteville, spoke on the need for a rededication to prayer on a national basis. Dr. Cammack said the nation must come to prayer and seek God's guidance and help in all that it does.

Col. and Mrs. Edsel R. Field, Col. and Mrs. Jerry W. Angell and the newly elected mayor of Fayetteville, Bill Hurley, were in attendance at the breakfast.

Colonel Angell delivered a message from the Secretary of Defense, Caspar Weinberger, in honor of the occasion.

The National Prayer Breakfast is held annually to remind citizens of our spiritual heritage, to pray for the nation and for our national leaders. It has been held each year since the Eisenhower Administration, when presidential and congressional staff met together for prayer.

Breakfasts were held throughout the nation and United States Military installations around the world.

"The breakfast went smoothly," said Chaplain Ralph McCulloh. "It was probably the best prayer breakfast we've had in a long time. The NCO club provided a good meal."

Falcons third in MAC tourney

Pope's Falcons took third place in the Military Airlift Command basketball tournament at Dover AFB, Del. Jan. 31-Feb. 4.

The Falcons lost to Norton AFB, Cal., in the semifinals after defeating both the Norton team and Kirtland AFB, N.M., in earlier contests. Pope suffered one other loss to the tourney champion Dover team.

Dover had defeated Norton in the championship game Feb. 4.

"I have mixed feelings about the tournament," said Falcon coach Myron Jones. "I thought we might finish higher but I was happy with the way the kids played."

Coach Jones praised star Falcon forward Ronnie Chalmers who averaged 18 points a game in the tournament.

"We're hopeful of having a good team next year even though most of our players won't be returning," Coach Jones said.

Pope's Chalmers was selected to a MAC all-star team and will represent the command at the Air Force Worldwide Championship Feb. 14-20 at Lackland AFB, Texas.

New hospital rates explained

Due to a public law, effective September 1981, active duty enlisted people will be charged a flat subsistence rate of $3.70 per day while hospitalized at Womack Army hospital, according to the hospital's patient administration division.

The charge is not dependent upon the number of meals consumed. Enlisted persons not on separate rations will be placed on separate rations for the period they are hospitalized. Reimbursement for the charge will be made by the member's finance officer after the member is discharged from the hospital. The subsistence charge must be paid at the time of the member's discharge from the hospital.

Airman's suggestion earns mystery box

AIC Kenneth J. Simmons, 3rd Mobile Aerial Port Squadron recently claimed his $50 gift as winner of the Pope Suggestion Office second mystery Christmas Box.

Airman Simmons, stationed at Pope since April 1980 submitted his first Air Force suggestion in January. That suggestion earned him the second mystery gift containing gifts and gift certificates, compliments of local merchants.

The Suggestion Office's new location is in Bldg. 306. The suggestion program director, Ms. Jean Kennedy, urges Pope people to come by and fill out a form 1000.

"Your good idea could make us all winners," Ms. Kennedy said.

Challenge relay race today

A "challenge" relay race between Pope's three flying squadrons begins today at 2 p.m. Runners will start and finish in front of the 41st Tactical Airlift Squadron.

Within the next few months the 41st TAS plans to challenge the entire base.

Col. James Callahan, deputy commander of operations, will fire the gun to start the race expected to end at 2:30 p.m. Col. Edsel R. Field, 317th Tactical Airlift Wing commander, will present awards to the runners and the winning team.

Spectators are encouraged to attend the race, promoted to focus attention on the importance of physical fitness within the military.

For more information contact Capt. Dennis Nutting or 1st Lt. Tom Morris at 41st TAS.

Pope recognizes

The following Pope people received certificates of appreciation for their volunteer work with family services:

Sue Anderson, Cheryl Andrews, Carla Ball received one year pins, Sue Angell a 19 year pin, Thellis Bushey a two year pin and 250 hour guard.

Prescilla Debro received a one year pin and 100 hour guard, Elsie Field a four year pin and Sheila Forrester a family services pin.

Kim Gonzales received a 250 hour guard, Lizette Hobbs a one year pin and 250 hour guard and Mary Francis Koerner a family services pin.

Jody McPherson was named volunteer of the year for 1981 and received a one year pin, Sue Neumann a uniform and family services pin, Dianna Reece a four year pin and Jerry Unger a family services pin, uniform and 100 hour guard.

Graham urges use of safety belts

The Reverend Billy Graham asks religious persons to join him in a vow during the fourth annual National Safety Sabbath weekend Feb. 12-14 to use safety belts and child safety seats whenever they are in motor vehicles.

Mr. Graham is chairman of the observance sponsored annually by the National Safety Council's Religious Leaders Division.

This year's safety sabbath weekend is co-sponsored by the National Highway Traffic Safety administration under the joint theme "let's get it together--make it click."

"I urge all who share in the love of God to show that love by placing life above inconvenience, ego, self will, impatience and pride," Mr. Graham said. Join me in a covenant both to use safety belts and to protect children in child safety seats each time we use our cars."

MAC assists with Operation Deep Freeze

Twenty-six airlift missions were flown from Christchurch International Airport, New Zealand, to McMurdo Station, Antarctica, for an annual operation known as Deep Freeze. Its purpose is to transport summer-season scientists in the U.S. Antarctic Research Program -- with support people and equipment -- to and from McMurdo Station.

As the main entrance to the Antarctic, McMurdo provides facilities for about 900 people during the summer operating season, as well as the major staging base for support of inland and remote field stations. Its ice runway, serviceable to wheeled aircraft such as the C-141B Starlifter from October through December, can present various hazards.

A common problem is "whiteout." This hazardous situation occurs when large expanses of snow blend with dense, low stratus clouds and blot out all traces of the surface.

Operation Deep Freeze requires that MAC forces work with the Navy, Army and the Royal New Zealand Air Force.

During 1981 Deep Freeze operations, more than 1,100 passengers and about 1.2 million tons of cargo were airlifted to and from "the ice."

High reliability continues through January

Pope continued to have one of the highest reliability rates for Military Airlift Command bases in January, according to recently compiled statistics.

During January, 1129 aircraft of various types took off from Pope. Of those departures, only 97 were delayed and 81 were early. Pope's overall controllable reliability rate for the month was 95.3 percent.

Attitude makes difference volunteer of year says

Jody McPherson, Pope family services volunteer of the year, thinks a warm smile and a positive attitude makes the difference. The difference, she says, between a newly arrived troop's good or bad first impression of Pope.

The wife of Lt. Col. Carl McPherson, Mrs. McPherson is the coordinator of family services. It is an organization that affirms through its work the well-known phrase, the Air Force takes care of its own. She has been a family services volunteer for a year and a half.

"We have a positive attitude about Pope and we try and communicate that feeling to the people who come in here," she said. "This is a really nice assignment."

Family services, located next to the Base Exchange Barber Shop, maintains a well-stocked loan closet. Air Force members can temporarily borrow a wide variety of household items, including cots, kitchen utensils, card tables, chairs and baby furniture like playpens and cribs.

The Center also provides a brochure file with up to date information on every Air Force installation in the United States and overseas, maintains sponsor kits and conducts an orientation briefing for newly arriving wives.

"I find this job to be very fulfilling," Mrs. McPherson said. "We are serving a useful purpose. When somebody walks in here and their household goods may not arrive for months, it is very satisfying to know you can help them," she said. "No one walks in here unless they really need something."

Mrs. McPherson said that she also derives a great deal of satisfaction from the monthly newcomers orientations for wives that the center conducts.

"We try and put the women at ease," she said. "Our briefings are informal and we try and get the women to interact and talk. We talk about shopping and places to eat--things that wives are interested in."

Mrs. McPherson was in charge of publicity for last May's personal affairs briefing for wives which saw a significant increase in attendance over the previous year.

Mrs. McPherson attributes her selection as family services volunteer of the year to her willingness to devote her time to a job she loves.

"I care about family services," she said.

MAC announces 1981 safety awards

The 317th Tactical Airlift Wing received the Military Airlift Command Flight Safety Achievement Award for 1981, the command announced recently.

Other units receiving the award were the 39th Aerospace and Recovery Wing, Eglin AFB, Fla.; 60th Military Airlift Wing, Travis AFB, Calif.; 349th MAW, Travis; 62nd MAW, McChord AFB, Wash.; 446th MAW, Norton; 39th MAW, Andrews AFB, Md.

Also the 374th TAW, Clark AB, the Philippines; 375th Aeromedical Airlift Wing, Scott, AFB, Ill.; 932 Aeromedical Airlift Group, Scott; 436th MAW, Dover AFB, Del.; 512th MAW, Dover; 437th MAW, Charleston AFB, S.C.; 315th MAW, Charleston; 443rd MAW, Altus AFB, Okla.; and the 616th Military Airlift Group, Elmendorf AFB, Alaska.

The award, explained Capt. Stanley Moorhouse, flight safety officer, is based on factors such as flying hours, aircraft movement and the rate of aircraft traffic.

"It's hard to compare our mission with other wings," Captain Moorhouse explained. "I'm not surprised we won the award because we are one of the busiest flightlines in MAC and our people do an excellent job."

Pope won another special achievement award for superior ground safety achievement in support of MAC airlift operations.

Sgt. Jeffery A. Crist was appointed to noncommissioned officer status.

Amn. Jerry Earnest was named squadron airman of the quarter and year. Honored as the NCO of the quarter and year was TSgt. Calvin C. Shortt. SMSgt. Charlie S. Walker, Jr. was named senior NCO of the year.

Base gym

Why couldn't the Gym be kept open 24 hours a day? This would allow people who work at night a chance to use the facilities. I'm sure there are enough people who would take advantage of this to make the cost worthwhile.

In Jan. and Feb. 1981, a test project was conducted to assess the possibility of offering 24-hour a day service at the Gym. In January between the hours of 11 p.m.-7 a.m. the average hourly head count was five persons. By February this number had dropped to 3.46 persons.

Making maximum use of assigned military members, it still costs in excess of $700 per month to open 24 hours a day. Consolidated Base Funds cannot afford this kind of expense in view of the small number of people who would benefit.

"Marriage day"

I recently received a letter from the Worldwide Marriage Encounter Organization. They propose we at Pope join Americans around the nation in proclaiming Feb. 14, Valentine's Day as "We Believe in Marriage Day."

I fully support this proposal. We who serve in the military are especially aware of the vital role our families play in the successful completion of our mission.

Stable marriages are the foundation of our society and they, in turn, foster solid family relationships.

In designating 1981 "year of the family," the Air Force demonstrated its strong commitment to supporting family concerns.

This Valentine's Day is a fitting occasion for our married members to reaffirm their commitment to each other and to one of our most cherished institutions.

Therefore I have signed the following proclamation:

Proclamation

Whereas, The foundation of America's greatness is the strengths of its families; and

Whereas, The family is established on the marriage relationships between father and mother; and

Whereas, There is need to stem the trend of separation and divorce that is prevalent today; and

Whereas, Marriage should be viewed as a life-long commitment between husband and wife, filled with mutual respect and open communications; and

Whereas, It is our hope that the institution of marriage be recognized as an important foundation of American society;

Now, Therefore, I, Colonel Edsel R. Field, commander of the 317th Tactical Airlift Wing, Pope Air Force Base, do hereby proclaim February 14, 1982, Valentine's Day, as "We Believe in Marriage Day" on Pope Air Force Base, and call upon all citizens throughout Pope Air Force Base to support efforts to promote the permanence and stability of marriage.

Q. What does black history week mean to you?

A. 1st Lt. John Kershaw, 41st Tactical Airlift Squadron -- It brings awareness to other people of the struggle our people had to get to the positions they hold today. People all over, of every color, have something to be proud of in their heritage.

A. SrA. Monica Chapman, 436th Supply, Dover AFB, Del. -- It really helps the morale of blacks in the military. This week gives each individual a chance to do something for our people. It gives each of us a sense of our heritage.

A. Anita Miller -- People are all the same in the Air Force. I don't think we really need a black history week or minority week, but I do appreciate the Air Force recognizing black history week. I really feel there is a lot of equality in the Air Force.

Man on the street

Key to golf and safety: concentration

By Bill Parsons, Wing Safety

I LOVE to play golf.

Playing golf is the only thing I can think of that I would rather do than eat. In fact, I have missed a lot of meals in order to go play golf. I have all of the problems that most weekend golfers have, and a few others.

The point that I'm leading up to is that working safely is a lot like playing good golf. Golf is a game that is played mostly in the player's head. It is 95 percent mental. Golfers can talk themselves into trouble. Workers can talk themselves into accidents by talking themselves into violating safety rules.

However, the most important similarity between golf and working safely is concentration. In both instances we must concentrate on what is about to be done. Many golfers, and I am one of them, have some difficulty in keeping their minds on the shot they are about to make. I know that I find myself putting for a birdie in my head while I am still in the process of getting onto the green.

When you are on the job and your mind is on the coming weekend's fishing trip, you may miss the fishing trip if the job at hand gets away from you. Of if you are driving and can't remember whether you stopped at a stop sign, you are in trouble. In golf or on the job, we must concentrate on what we are doing.

Another thing that gives me and a lot of other golfers trouble is the failure to correct a recognized failure. At times I find that when I am taking my backswing I feel that something is wrong: I don't feel comfortable, my feet are not right, my grip is not right. In that case, the thing to do is stop the swing, back away from the ball, and start over. But do I? Not often. The tendency is to continue the shot and try to make it work. Usually it doesn't.

Many times on the job, a worker will face the same problem. A load is too heavy or is being handled wrong, positioning is bad, or a number of other things. The thing to do is stop and start over again, and do it right. Unfortunately, many workers continue with the job and end up hurting themselves. Many back and shoulder injuries are the result of this kind of action. Don't go ahead with something when you know it is wrong.

Did you ever watch the pros play golf on television? They look over the lie of the ball and remove anything that they can (within the rules) that might affect the ball. On the green in particular, they pick up such small things as blades of grass. Mostly, it is not because the grass, or whatever, will affect the ball.

These things are removed because they have caught the golfer's attention and might cause a break in concentration during the shot. It is the same on the job or when driving a vehicle. If there is something that is distracting you, get rid of it.

A golfer can save some grief by concentrating on the game. A worker can save grief on the job the same way.

Home heating fires increase

Woodburning stoves and fireplaces were the main factors in a 32 percent increase in heating fires in one and two-family dwellings between 1979 and 1980.

According to figures released by the Federal Emergency Management Agency's U.S. Fire Administration, solid fuel heating fires—primarily those in fireplaces and woodburning stoves—showed a dramatic 66 percent increase, while other types of heating fires in these residences increased only about eight percent for the period.

Solid-fuel heating also was responsible for 42 percent of the fire deaths in one and two-family dwellings in 1980.

Improper installation, putting bedding and other combustible materials too close to the fireplace or stove and lack of maintenance allowing creosote to build up were the major problems in fires involving woodburning stoves and fireplaces.

Base Fire Inspectors will provide needed safety information about these and other winter hazards.

Pope crews support "Team Spirit '82"

By SSgt. Cynthia Hedrick

The Military Airlift Command's "Team Spirit '82" exercise will begin February 13, with MAC flying about 280 missions, airlifting more than 14,000 troops and nearly 3,600 tons of cargo to Korea.

Seventy-four Pope Air Force Base people will take part in the exercise, including eight crews from the 41st Tactical Airlift Squadron, 17 maintenance personnel, 7 from intelligence and 2 people from the 317th Supply Squadron.

This 5-week Joint Chiefs of Staff-directed, United States Pacific Command-sponsored field training exercise is designed to test the deployment reception and employment of Republic of Korea and U.S. forces responding to possible contingencies in Korea.

MAC airlift control elements and mission support teams will be sent to 24 locations throughout the United States and to major Pacific bases to handle the on-load and off-load of Department of Defense forces flying to the exercise area.

Government must increase women's role Weinberger says

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—"This Administration desires to increase the role of women in the military and I expect the service secretaries actively to support that policy," Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger told secretaries of the military departments in a recent memorandum.

"Women in the military are a very important part of our total-force capability. Qualified women are essential to obtaining the numbers of quality people required to maintain the readiness of our forces," the memo reads.

"While we have made much progress, some institutional barriers still exist. I ask that you personally review your service policies to ensure that women are not subject to discrimination in recruiting or career opportunities.

Potential appraisal system is for competitive action

The new Civilian Potential Appraisal System (CPAS) will provide procedures for evaluating employees competing for in-service actions such as promotion, reassignment and selection for training, civilian personnel officials say.

The system will be implemented this summer.

The potential appraisal system will be one factor used to determine if a person is referred for competitive placement in a job. Its purpose is to make meaningful distinctions among qualified employees.

Potential will be determined by formulas developed for 23 types of positions—called job families—having similar characteristics of job requirements.

Weights—the degree of importance of each element in a job family—have been assigned to each of the 19 behavioral dimensions for each family. Weights vary by job family and supervisory or non-supervisory characteristics of the positions.

For example, behavioral dimension number 12 is "the employee prepared written materials that are effective and easily understood." When an employee applies for a writer/editor position, the rating on element number 12 would have a high weight because it is very important in that occupation. If the employee applies for an accounting technician position, the rating received for this element would have a low weight. Element number 12 would not even be considered if the employee applies for an electrician position.

Forty different formulas are used to predict an employee's potential for success. The maximum rating possible for each job family is different. The maximum rating on the CPAS will depend on the job family, whether the job is supervisory or non-supervisory and the applicable behavioral dimensions. As a result, no single score can be provided to an employee.

Additional information can be obtained from Civilian Personnel, Ext. 2418.

Falcons drop shootout, women grab third

Local top amateur bowlers, representing B&B Lanes of Fayetteville, visited Pope recently to compete against the base's two varsity bowling teams.

After the final pins had dropped in one of the highest scoring matches ever witnessed at Pope Lanes, the Falcons had lost a heartbreaker, 6,938 to 6,678; while the Falconettes extended their record to 3 and 0 with a devastating 6,183 to 5,800-pin win.

Falcons

The Falcons, fresh off a big win with Seymour-Johnson AFB, jumped out to an early first-set lead behind the hot shooting of lefthander Johnny Cassell. Cassell, better known as "Mr. Falcon" in local bowling circles, ripped off games of 224, 213 and 233 for an excellent 670-pin start, followed by Falcon team captain, Mike Callahan, who added two more 200-plus games and a 618 set to the attack.

B&B found the range in the second set, grabbed the lead in game four and never again trailed. Jay DeJaynes led the All-Star's assault with 627 pins, followed by Wally Wallace's second straight 619 set. Gene Sparks added a 602 to the All-Star's total.

The loss marked the Falcon's first of the season and first ever to a Fayetteville team at Pope Lanes.

Cassell led all scoring in the event with 1,239 pins, followed by Wallace's 1,238.

Falconettes

The Falconettes, resembling anything but a squad that went winless in 1981, ripped past their guests in game one and roared on to a big 367-pin win. Premiere righthander, Linda Griffin, led the Falconette's first block attack with a 554-pin performance that included a 236 game, followed by Martha Killian's 540-pin effort.

Debra Stefan, rolling in her last match as a Falconette, and Griffin continued to apply the pressure in the second set, rolling 567 and 523, respectively. Sue Whiteside's 547 paced the B&B attack.

Griffin led all scorers in the event with 1,077 pins. Killian was second with a 1,033-pin total.

The win was the third in as many outings for the lady Falcons.

Mixed Doubles

Pope couples grabbed the majority of the places in the match's side-line event.

Falconette team captain, Marilyn Long and partner, Cassell, blasted their way to first place in the event, rolling scores of 562 and 624, respectively. Their 1,186-pin total was highlighted by Long's 238 final game.

Another Pope duo, Killian and Rich

McClain, grabbed second place in the event with 1,135 pins, while two other Pope teams were placing "in the money;" Yu-Lan Bailey and Ed Fenstermacher (1,099), fifth and Griffin and Lee Ballard (1,079) sixth.

Overall

Cassell led the men's scoring for the day with 1,863 pins and a 207 average. Wallace, B&B's team captain, and All-Star Pete Zanella, finished second and third respectively with totals of 1,776 and 1,763.

Killian carried the scoring banner for the women, knocking down 1,599 pins for a 177 average. Griffin's 1,555 and 172-pin average earned her second place in the scoring parade.

The Falcons are now in Las Vegas, Nev., competing in the Worldwide Military Bowling Championships held annually at the Showboat Hotel, Casino and Bowling Center.

Air Force chooses C-5N, KC-10A combination over C-17

The Air Force has recommended that a mix of 44 KC-10A and 50 C-5N aircraft be procured as soon as possible to lesson a serious shortage in military airlift, instead of the previous proposal to purchase the C-17A.

The C-5N is a modernized version of the C-5A Galaxy cargo aircraft. The KC-10A is a dual-purpose airlifter and tanker. Cost would be about 11 billion during the next five years.

The Air Force has supported the C-17A until recently. That was based on the assumption that funds for airlift would be limited. Under that assumption, the Air Force believed the slightly earlier availability of the C-5N would be offset by advantages of the C-17A--better military utility and more potential for the ultimate replacement of the C-130 and C-141 force.

Hazardous toy recalled by exchange service

Teething beads manufactured by Baby World are being recalled by the Army Air Force Exchange Service because they present a potential hazard. Knots on the beads are loose and exposed. The knots can be easily untied and the loose beads can be swallowed. The beads should be returned for refund.
