Coverdale to speak at dinner

Lt. Gen. Robert F. Coverdale, vice commander-in-chief, Military Airlift Command, will be the guest speaker at a dinner hosted by the Air Force Association at the Pope Officers' Club Aug. 31.

The coat and tie dinner will begin with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30. Menu for the evening will be roast prime rib of beef, baked potato, green beans, creme de cacao parfait, wine and coffee or tea.

All military and civilians are invited to the dinner. Reservations must be made through Wing Protocol, Ext. 4739 by Aug. 27. Include number of people in party and club card number.

General Coverdale was commander of the 317th Tactical Airlift Wing from June 1975-August 1977.

Pope sergeant honor graduate

SSgt. Donald Q. Ralston, 39th Tactical Airlift Squadron, is the honor graduate of the class that graduates today from NCO Leadership school at Dover AFB, Del.

Eleven other Pope people graduate today from the same class and three from the school at Seymour Johnson AFB.

Graduates from the Dover class are: Sgt. Terry L. Fesenmeyer, 3rd Mobile Aerial Port Squadron; SSgt. Thomas J. Neville, 317th Security Police Squadron; SSgt. Philip A. Palmer, Clinic; SSgt. Scott M. Abukoff, 317th Transportation Squadron; SSgt. Gary L. Morgan, 317th Organizational Maintenance Squadron; SSgt. William Lewandowski, 317th OMS; SSgt. Mark C. Mitchell, 317th OMS; SSgt. Thomas E. Worn, 317th Avionics Maintenance Squadron; Sgt. McKeeth Williams, 40th TAS; Sgt. Clifford, R. Blair, Headquarters Squadron; and SSgt. Neil D. Perdigne, Trans.

From the school at Seymour Johnson, graduates are: Sgt. Thomas P. Griffin, 41st TAS; SSgt. Darlene R. Ormond, Clinic; and SSgt. Virginia A. Roberts, 317th Combat Support Group.

Layaway policy changes

Army and Air Force Exchange Service officials have announced a change in the layaway program to bring it into line with standard commercial practices.

Effective Aug. 26, a $1 nonrefundable service charge will be made at the time a layaway transaction is initiated to help defray paperwork and administrative costs of the program that allow customers to fit purchases into their budget.

A recent study indicated that in-store processing costs for each layaway transaction are $2.17 from the time the layaway is initiated until customer pick up. When overhead costs and mark-downs are added, the total cost of the layaway program to AAFES is $17 million a year.

While major retailers charge their customers as much as $2 for layaways, AAFES officials felt this was too much to impose on their customers and elected to absorb the majority of the cost.

Layaways average 1,300 per exchange per month in the continental United States and 1,700 in overseas exchanges and amount to $420 million per year worldwide. According to the study 44 percent of all items placed on layaway are clothing, 16 percent home entertainment items and 11 percent household items. The remaining 20 percent covers all other items sold in exchanges worldwide.

Certain nasal inhalants banned in Japan

HICKAM AFB, Hawaii (AFNS) — Service members and others entering Japan are advised that use of certain nasal inhalants are illegal and could lead to prosecution by Japanese authorities, announced Air Force officials.

Officials explained that an American citizen was detained by Japanese authorities because he was in possession of a Vicks brand nasal inhaler. The inhaler contained the drug desoxyephedrine, outlawed by Japan.

Travelers to Japan and others stopping over in that country are advised to check their baggage for nasal inhalants containing the drug.

The inhalants, although legal elsewhere, were withdrawn from the base exchanges in Japan. Sprays and other decongestants that do not contain the banned drug are still stocked by the exchanges, said officials.

President nominates General Bralliar AF Surgeon General

RAMSTEIN AB, West Germany (AFNS) — President Ronald Reagan has nominated Maj. Gen. (Dr.) Max B. Bralliar for his third star and as surgeon general of the Air Force.

The 32-year, active-duty veteran will replace Lt. Gen. Paul W. Myers, whose assignment as surgeon general was terminated on July 31 for the purpose of retirement.

General Bralliar has served as command surgeon of the United States Air Forces in Europe since February 1980, and was also command surgeon for the U.S. European Command since March 1981. In these positions he was responsible for medical services for all Army, Air Force and Navy members in Europe. In addition to these assignments he was command surgeon for the Strategic Air Command at Offutt AFB, Neb., from 1975-1980.

The general supported 15 National Aeronautics and Space Administration manned space flights as part of the launch-site recovery teams. He was one of four flight surgeons on eight of the 10 flight missions of Project Gemini. General Bralliar also acted as flight surgeon on the Apollo 14, 16 and 17, and all manned Skylab flights.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., the general earned a bachelor's degree from Madison College, Tenn., and a doctor of medicine degree from Loma Linda University, Calif. He holds the aeronautical rating of chief flight surgeon.

Guard vacancies announced

Vacancies exist in the South Carolina Air National Guard in a number of career fields, particularly in 461X0, 462X0, 32XXX, 304XX and 201X1 fields. People with an existing military obligation may also qualify for a special Affiliation Bonus of $25 per month extra for the time left on their enlistment.

Interested persons may call collect—1-803-776-0661, or write—The South Carolina Air National Guard, Recruiting Office, McEntire ANG Base, Eastover, S.C. 29044.

40th holds Volant Spouse flight

The 40th Tactical Airlift Squadron conducted a Volant Spouse orientation flight recently.

Volant Spouse is a program to educate aircrew members' spouses about the jobs their partners perform in the squadron. The spouses are briefed on the squadron mission and then have a short flight on a C-130.

Commissary baggers: To tip or not to tip?

KELLY AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Shoppers at commissaries often ask if they should tip the person who bags their groceries.

Air Force Commissary Service officials say baggers are not government employees and receive no pay other than what they earn in tips. However, tipping is voluntary and the amount is strictly up to the customer.

The amount of the tip can depend on the quality of service received, courtesy of the bagger, number of bags of groceries, distance the bags to be carried, weather conditions, etc.

Customers may bag their own groceries, but should let the cashier and the bagger know in advance before the bagger begins to bag the purchases.

Baggers wear name tags and can easily be identified. The customer's cash register receipt has the bagger's number on it, making it easy to report the bagger for exceptionally good service and courtesy, or for reporting unsatisfactory service. The head bagger and store manager should be notified in either case.

Movers must now meet stricter standards

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Carriers of household and personal goods belonging to military members must now "measure up" to standards of loss and damage, and on-time pickup and delivery.

MTMC officials say the former three-tier rating levels of "superior," "excellent," and "standard," are no longer being used. Scoring of the carriers under the new system is based on the three elements considered most important by service members:

- On-time pickup.
- On-time delivery.
- Incidence of loss or damage.

A perfect score is 33.33 points on each of the three elements. A score of 85 or higher, based on a 100-point scale, must be maintained if carriers wish to remain eligible to carry DOD shipments. Carriers failing to meet or exceed the minimum score of 85 will be denied DOD traffic for 60 days beginning the next rating cycle. Installation transportation officers score the carriers.

This is the first time the DOD has had specific performance standards to measure both on-time pickup and delivery and loss or damage, say MTMC officials. The cost of personal stateside property shipments for fiscal 1981 was $218 million, according to MTMC officials.

"The new system is more streamlined," says command spokesman Pete Shugert. "It's reducing the administrative workload for the installation transportation officers and is providing a meaningful evaluation of carrier performance."

MTMC commander, Maj. Gen. John D. Bruen, said, "By comparing the levels of service on a regional, state or national level, we are in the best position to evaluate each carrier's overall performance and help them improve the quality of service."

The standards are part of a carrier evaluation and reporting system begun May 1 and administered by the Military Traffic Management Command. MTMC annually monitors more than 200,000 domestic shipments transported by 1,500 Department of Defense approved carriers.

A CCT school student goes through grueling daily physical training session

Pope's CCT school is tough, demanding

By TSgt Ken Hammond
Det. 7, 1361st AVS

The sun is just peeking over the horizon as men's faces twist and contort, blood vessels protrude in their arms, grunts escape their lips, sweat pours from closely cropped heads. The exertion of the early morning PT (physical training) has begun another day at Pope's Combat Control School.

The school is the final obstacle for the Combat Control candidate. It is the culmination of 12 weeks of Air Traffic Control school at Keesler AFB, Miss., three weeks of parachute training at Ft. Benning, Ga., and an intense screening process before being sent here where it all comes together.

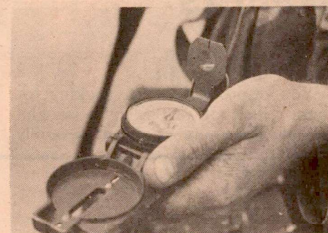

For the next eight and one half weeks, students will undergo intense physical and academic training. They will make up to nine parachute jumps and complete training in communications, first aid, weapons, patrol and ambush techniques, DZ (drop zone), LZ (landing zone) establishment and extraction, helicopter insertion and extraction and jump-master training—all along with thousands of pushups and more than 500 miles of running.

With each training phase the class slims down until only the best and most motivated remain. By the time they have completed training, they will know more about themselves and their capabilities. When they reach graduation day and don the coveted red beret, the symbol of the Combat Controller, they know they have earned it.

Children in pool

A year ago children were allowed to go to the base pool unaccompanied. This year they are not allowed to go to the base pool unaccompanied under 10 years old. Also, last year a parent could go over and watch his child swim but they want to charge a parent 50 cents this year just to sit and watch the child swim. Our son is 9 years old and I feel that he is responsible enough, with the assistance of the life guard, to enjoy himself in having a recreational evening at the pool.

In the interest of safety we require children under the age of 10 to be accompanied by a responsible adult. We feel that these children need additional supervision other than what the lifeguards on duty can provide. While the maturity level of individuals vary, we have to look at the total age grouping when establishing age requirements. The 50 cent charge covers the cost of using the pool area to swim and sunbathe. We encourage all parents to actively participate with their children when using the swimming pool. However, it is not feasible to admit observers on a non-paying basis due to a pool capacity level which restricts the number admitted and to provide an equitable basis for use of the pool area.

Where's the flag?

I attended the Capabilities Exercise at Fort Bragg recently with my family. I was disappointed that at a military display of this size and importance our National Anthem was not played and the flag was not flown. In the future we should try a little harder to show a little patriotism to go along with the fire power.

I commend you for your patriotic devotion and your suggestion may indeed have merit. The Capabilities Exercise/Firepower Demonstration, however, is conducted by the XVIII Airborne Corps. Your suggestion has been forwarded to the XVIII Airborne Corps Public Affairs Office for their consideration.

Time number

Why Can't we have a number to direct dial for the time?

A carton of cigarettes costs $5, on an average. Sure, you may be able to buy it cheaper somewhere. But you will still manage to run out at a restaurant or bowling alley and be forced to feed a machine 70 to 90 cents for a stale pack of your favorite "killer sticks."

At a carton a week, think what you're giving up.

That $5 can fill at least a quarter of your vehicle's gas tank. It can pay for dinner at a fast food outlet, cover the cost of a movie or buy a book of stamps with money left over for envelopes.

Quitting smoking for a month will save $20—enough to fill a gas tank, make an extra credit card payment or pay for a nice dinner with that someone special.

Features such as "Dial Time" circuits are considered luxuries and are extremely expensive to operate and maintain; therefore, are not authorized on most military installations. Base personnel requiring an official time check in performance in their duties can dial Autovan 923-6166 or 294-4950.

Civilians at clubs

What criteria is used to determine eligibility for Open Mess membership for federal government civilian employees?

Eligibility for membership in either the Officers' or NCO Open Mess is based on guidelines that are locally established. For example, at Pope civilian employees at the GS-7/WG-12 level are eligible for membership in the Officers' Open Mess. This policy incidently is consistent with guidance contained in Air Force Regulation 90-9 concerning military and civilian grade equivalents. Compensation is not a factor in determining membership eligibility for Open Mess members.

In a year's time $240 is spent for cigarettes and after 20 years $4,800 has gone up in smoke.

That's enough to pay for a car, use as a down payment on a house or send a youngster to college for one year.

Now don't forget to add accessories. Matches, lighters, cases, ashtrays, air fresheners, stain removers and, of course, a special toothpaste, aren't free. Also add the cost of new carpets and upholstery repairs for all those cigarette burns and that $4,800 really starts to billow out.

The bottom line is there are cheaper ways to kill yourself and do you really have that kind of money to burn?

No! So let yourself and your wallet live life to the fullest, quit smoking! You owe it to yourself.

Smoking hurts wallets

By SSgt. Rick Kron
Little Rock AFB, Ark.

You've probably been smoking for more years than you'd like to say and for that same number of years a family member, friend, neighbor or stranger has been giving you reasons to quit.

Has it done any good?

No. You still walk around like a smoke-billowing chemical factory chimney.

You've been told smoking can ruin your health or even kill you and ruin the health of others. And all you've done, as a token gesture, is delay lighting your next "hit" by a few minutes.

Well, what if you were told smoking is hazardous to your wallet? It is!

The cigarette has now fallen from your mouth as the chord of greed in your body has just been struck, so let's talk dollars and cents and see if it registers with your common sense.

The Base Advisory Council is just one of several channels people on Pope have to resolve situations and get answers to questions. The council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to base people. Some of the topics discussed at a recent meeting are reprinted below:

Can we establish a shuttle service to the dining hall for maintenance people on the grave shift?

mischievous demons come out to play tricks on us. If anything bad is going to happen to us, this is the day it's most likely to happen.

If you're fated to trip and break an ankle, today is the day. If you're going to rap your thumb with a hammer, now's your chance. If you've been waiting for the right time to have that little accident, this is it.

If you really feel that you've just got to have an accident, then do it today with a clear conscious. You can always blame it on fate.

However, if you're not a superstitious person, then you'll just have to ignore the calendar and go on about business in your normal safe manner. You'll use the right equipment for the job, make sure you know what you're doing, watch your step, make use of supplied safety equipment and think only safe thoughts.

In short, today will be just like any other day of the year. You'll do your job safely and the "fates" won't get a chance to pull their tricks.

dent screened all the maintenance organizations and found only a few individuals who were having trouble getting to the dining hall. The Transportation Squadron offers transportation on request during that shift.

The outdoor basketball courts have been removed. Will they be replaced?

The new Dental Clinic construction made it necessary to raze the basketball courts. They have been moved to the field behind the Visiting Officers' Quarters.

Does the dining hall offer any menus for dieters?

The dining hall offers a variety of salads for dieters, as well as some low-calorie standard items. The dining hall manager displays a calorie count list in the dining hall with standard items listed. Copies of this list will be distributed to all units for display in orderly rooms.

How I spent my summer vacation

Doing the two-step

Remember writing those words each fall when school reopened? Well, the children at Pope who attended the Youth Center's Summer Camp Program will really have a lot to write about this year. Horseback riding, bowling, skating, putt-putt, swimming and social dancing. Sports weren't overlooked either. Everyone had their turn playing tennis, gymnastics, basketball, volleyball, kickball and everyone's favorite dodgeball.

They were enlightened by lectures from such organizations as the fire department, security police, social actions, and the chaplain's office.

Nature walks, picnics, field trips, movies, arts and crafts and Parent's Day, were added to round out the fun.

When asked, "What did you like best at summer camp?", one answered, "The field trips, they were fun." Another answered, "Gymnastics and sports were my favorites." Still another, "I liked everything. It was fun and I can't wait until next summer."

So next year, if your child is between the ages of 6 and 12 sign them up for Camp. They'll love it.

Former alcoholic talks about nature of disease

Nature of the disease

It knows no discrimination. It can affect any person of any race, creed, sex, age, education, social or financial status or cultural background. It is ranked second only to cardiovascular disease as the most costly disease to the American public—$60 billion annually. Thirteen million Americans have this disease, and this is a conservative estimate. The disease is manifested through the use of the most abused, mind-altering, yet legal substance in the world today. The disease is alcoholism. And I am a recovering alcoholic. I would like to share some personal experiences and insights gained about this disease during my recovery period.

Although there are many definitions for alcoholism, it can be simply defined as a disease resulting in the compulsive and uncontrolled drinking of alcoholic beverages. Another definition would be the failure to terminate usage of alcohol after any continuing disruptions in an individual's personal, social, spiritual or economic life caused by such usage. But these are simple definitions for a complex disease. Here are some other factors tended periods of non-drinking. It is not regressive in the absence of intervention.

Alcoholism is a primary disease. In

Editor's note: This article is the first installment in a six-part series on alcoholism. The author of the article is a recovered alcoholic.

involved.

Alcoholism has been classified as a disease by the American Medical Association since 1956. Like epilepsy or diabetes, alcoholism is an arrestable disease. Alcoholism is recognizable, largely by the individual's drinking behavior which may be inappropriate, unpredictable, excessive, in "binges" or constant. Alcoholism is predictable and progressive. Simply stated, the disease only gets worse, even during ex-the past, alcoholism had been treated as if it were a symptom of an underlying emotional or psychological disorder, poor morals, or a "weak will." The medical and behavioral scientists now recognize it as a primary disease frequently leading to secondary diseases involving the liver, heart, blood pressure, or to other physical, mental or emotional ailments.

Alcoholism is permanent and terminal. Although alcoholism is treatable, it is not curable. Despite extensive ongoing research into the cause or causes of alcoholism, no specific cause has yet been identified; thus, there is no cure. An alcoholic is afflicted with the disease until death. Continued use of alcohol by an alcoholic will normally result in premature death by the disease, a secondary disease, accident or suicide. Death is usually preceded by physical or emotional illness caused by alcoholism.

Alcoholism is considered by authorities to be a physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual disease, and each of these areas must be addressed during the effective treatment of the alcoholic.

Alcoholism is treatable. Although it cannot be cured at this time, it can be treated and arrested through identification, education and rehabilitation. Unfortunately, it is estimated that only one out of 37 alcoholics in the United States receives some form of treatment. As public awareness and education increases and scientific research advances, these statistics may change.

Tougher laws mean DUIs cost more in some states

NORTON AFB, Calif. (AFNS) -- Laws passed in 25 states have made penalties higher and costs more expensive for vehicle operators caught driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.

The Air Force Inspection and Safety Center at Norton has joined in the national effort to cut down driving under the influence.

"Driving under the influence" -- DUI -- is a term used for driving after an intake of anything that impairs judgment. "Driving while intoxicated" -- DWI -- means the driver has reached the legal level of intoxication.

Results of both DUI and DWI flash daily in the headlines and on television screens: bodies maimed for life, accidents wiping out entire families, damage to property. Most of these costs cannot be measured. And because of the far-reaching effects on families and the entire nation, laws were passed to classify certain DUI cases as criminal. Now the driver can't get by without paying.

Safety officials say some of the rising costs brought on by the new laws are for:

- Bail bonds.
- Paying the police for an impounded car.
- Hiring an attorney.
- Paying for a court-ordered school for drunk drivers, and
- Paying higher insurance premiums for years to come.

In some states, officials say a simple DUI arrest -- not involving collision, injuries or deaths -- can cost the driver as much as $3,500.

The following states have tightened DUI enforcement, strengthened penalties or enforced rehabilitation programs: California, Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, Oregon, Texas, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Although the laws vary in these states, most are quite tough and have all been tightened.

The Air Force fully supports these efforts. Commanders at all levels have the tools necessary to prevent drunken driving -- and when it does occur -- to deal with it firmly. The consequences to an Air Force member both in the civilian community and on base are severe.

AFISC officials warn that no matter what base or what state a member may live in, it's getting costly to be caught driving under the influence.

SNCOA associate criteria

A change, effective Jan. 1, 1983, to the enrollment eligibility for the Air Force Senior Noncommissioned Academy Associate program allows technical sergeants (master sergeant selectees) to enroll. Additional details about the program can be obtained from the base education office, or by calling the Extension Course Institute, Gunter AFS, Ala., at Autovon 921-3404 or -4259.
