Squadron Sets Up Fund For Crash Victims' Families

Lt. Marc A. Lenke and Sgt. Tony P. Family members are staying near the Texas military hospital, and leaving Fayetteville and their jobs has resulted in a financial strain.

Members of the aircrew's unit set up a fund to help relatives of the survivors bear out-of-town living expenses and to provide

The 40th TAS Survivors' and Memorial Fund also will accept donations to any charitable program in the name of the aircrew. "But the biggest reason is to help family members of the survivors living at the burn center," said MSgt. Emmett P. Starnes, the 40th TAS 1st sergeant who, along with Lt. Col. Stephen Acuff, squadron commander, established the fund.

Starnes said family members are living in a military guest house near the hospital, paying for room and board and suffering lost income because they had to leave their jobs behind.

Starnes said donations from as far away as Tampa, Fla., and Charlotte have come in. That money came from civilians who were at Sicily Drop Zone for an annual capabilities exercise when the crash occurred, Starnes said.

The crash occurred before a shocked crowd of about 5,000 people, some of them friends of the victims.

Killed were Bardo; Capt. John B. Keiser, the navigator; and TSgt. Tirmothy J Matar and Airman 1st Class Albert G. Dunse, loadmasters. Also killed was SSgt. Douglas L. Hunter, of the 82nd Airborne Division's 3rd Battalion, 73rd Armor Regiment, who was hit by the plane before it exploded. Douglas' unit also has established a scholarship fund for his two children. Deputies Say Robeson Suit Claims False

Two Robeson County Sheriff's deputies Monday denied allegations that they beat a man whom they were trying to arrest along a rural road in May 1986. They also asked that a lawsuit against them be

The deputies, Kevin Stone and Burnis Wilkins, were accused of police brutality in a lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Fayetteville.

Robert Lewis, 30, of Rowland filed the suit, which seeks at least $21,000 in damages. The suit says Stone and Wilkins did not identify themselves to Lewis, then beat him with flashlights when trying to arrest him.

Wilkins, Stone, his father Sheriff Hubert Stone and Robeson County are named as defendants in the suit.

Wilkins and Kevin Stone filed a response to the lawsuit in federal court saying Stone used the blue flashing lights and siren on his unmarked police car to stop Lewis around 9 p.m. on May 26, 1986.

Stone said in the answer that he saw Lewis' car swerving across the road from shoulder to shoulder and he believed that the driver of the car was impaired.

The response said that Lewis knew Stone was "a law enforcement officer with the Robeson County Sheriff's Department."

It said Stone identified himself then asked Lewis for his identification. Lewis refused to show his identification, and Stone called for assistance, the answer said!

Wilkins responded to Stone's call for help, then identified himself and told Lewis that he was being arrested for driving while impaired, it said.

Wilkins then tried to handcuff Lewis.

Lewis' suit alleges that he stepped away from the officer and asked for identification. It says the officers then hit him repeatedly with their flashlights, pushed him to the ground and twisted his arm.

The deputies' response denies these claims.

Lewis' suit also said Stone gave him field sobriety tests, but the deputies' response said no tests were done.

The response said the deputies "acted in good faith and with a good faith belief in the lawfulness of their actions" while arresting him and after his arrest while he was being held by the sheriff's depart-

Cumberland Freezes Administrators' Pay

By WALT WINTERMUTE

A resolution to increase locally paid school supplements and freeze the local salary levels next year of about 15 upper-level school administrators was approved Monday by the Cumberland County Board of Commissioners.

But the resolution will need final approval from the Cumberland County Board of Education before the new pay scale goes into effect.

The resolution adopted Monday by the county commissioners is a more detailed proposal than a one-page document presented to the commissioners by the school board following a June 22 meeting.

School Attorney Maynette Regan said she drafted a resolution following the joint meeting between the school board and county commissioners on "the motions that had been voted on."

But Commissioners' Chairman Morris Bedsole said he had been

Hospital To Consider Bond Issue

Cape Fear Valley Medical Center officials have been granted permission to explore financing more than $16.6 million in hospital improvements through revenue

The Cumberland County Board of Commissioners passed a non-binding resolution Monday that allows hospital administrators to research bond markets to determine whether a bond issue of up to $18 million is feasible. Hospital officials said that it may cost up to $400,000 for a detailed analysis that will help them decide whether it is feasible to issue the bonds.

"This (resolution) does not allow for the issuance of bonds. It's simply stating that we're interested in exploring this further," County Attorney Neil Yarborough said.

County Attorney Neil Yarborough said the resolution reflects concerns aired by commissioners and school board members on June 22 during a joint meeting, and findings of a teachers supplement committee.

The agreement restores $3.5 million the commissioners witheld from the schools' 1987-88 budget in lieu of an acceptable supplement plan and releases a $1.6 million

Explosive Set On Bus

An explosive device was found attached to the undercarriage of a Cumberland County school bus Monday, the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department reported this morning.

Army explosive experts said the device was a explosive simulator. But it was placed near the gas tank of the bus and probably would have resulted in an explosion or fire if it had been detonated, officials

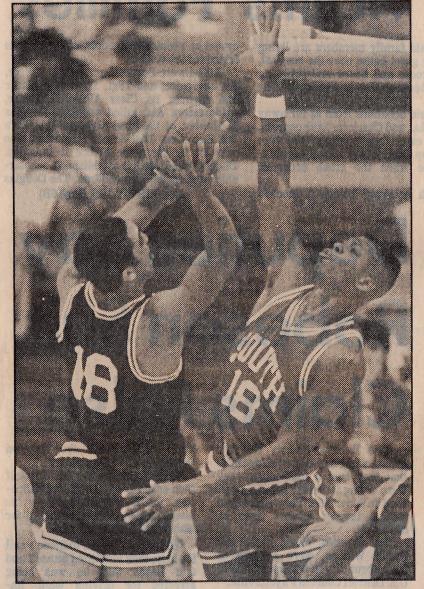

A string had been attached to the drive shaft and connected to the fuse of the device.

Ted Chappell, supervisor of transportation with the Cumberland County schools, said the device was found on bus No. 44, which was assigned to Hope Mills Junior High School.

The vehicle has been parked at the school bus parking lot behind the school administration office off U.S. 301 South since the end of the school year.

The case has been referred by deputies to the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Roadblock ... J.R. Reid foils Felton Spencer's scoring try

South Win Spoils Lefty's Dramatics

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — It was vintage Lefty Driesell in a classic

Leading his East team against the favored South at the U.S. Olympic Festival, Driesell devised a perfect defense for the opponent's No. 1 weapon, J.R. Reid of North Carolina. When it worked, he thrust his fist in the air in triumph, reminiscent of many of his days when he coached at Maryland.

When the defense did if he thought the referees weren't allowing it to work, Driesell would stomp down on the wooden floor at the Smith Center, just like his days in College Park, Md., and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

That particular Leftyism sparked many in the crowd into a foot-stomping response.

"The officials made bad calls, I made bad calls," he drawled. "That was just part of my act."

And when it was over, Reid had hit five free throws in nearly four minutes, including the second of a two-shot foul with 22 seconds left to give the South a 77-76 victory and a berth in Wednesday's gold medal

Despite a 109-103 loss to the West, the North got into the gold medal contest by winning out in a tiebreaker system used when three teams finished at 1-2.

"I thought we did a great job of stopping them from getting the ball inside, and did a good job on J.R.," Driesell said.

Driesell conceded that he had faced the best team in the tournament, but not that he shouldn't get a second chance to face it. "I think we played the South better than anyone else. I think our hall club has done a super job. Driesell said, noting that it was the tiebreaker system that ousted his team from the championship game.

"We lose by one-hundredth of a point, whatever that is. It's disappointing," Driesell said. "But like I told our players, if that's a rule, that's a rule."

Reid was bounced around on the inside thanks to a smothering defense. But the forwards and the guards took over and held off the East until Reid's free throws.

South Coach Eddie Sutton was unsure who would start the goldmedal struggle.

"We might start anybody Wednesday night," Sutton said. "We've got 12 wonderful people and we want to win the gold. I do not think we will be complacent."

J.R. Reid, Speedskater Muse Excel Under Festival Pressure

DURHAM (AP) — Dante Muse and J.R. Reid didn't let the pressure bother them as they continued their U.S. Olympic Festival heroics.

Muse, a 20-year-old roller speedskater from Des Moines, Iowa, won three gold medals Monday, bringing his festival haul this year to five, the same number he won in 1986. Reid, the 6-foot-9 sophomore center from the University of North Carolina, hit five free throws down the stretch, including the decisive point, as the South moved into Wednesday's gold medal basketball game with a 77-76 victory over the East.

Reid's team will meet the North, even though that team lost a 109-103 shootout to the West in the other game. In women's play, the South and West will tangle. The West won 64-50 over the North behind 13 points and 12 rebounds from Pauline Jordan. The South got 14 points from Carla Green in an 85-66 victory over the East.

The hockey competition begins today in Greensboro. Approximately 30 players will be selected from the tournament for the U.S. Olympic team's training camp at Lake Placid, N.Y. Tennis and boxing finals also were on the

"I would never have expected us to be at this point," Hill Carrow, president and executive director of the festival, said. "We have gone beyond all expectations."

The record for ticket sales was set in Houston last year. This year's event was only $50,000 shy of the mark with one week remaining.

Muse completed his performances at Dorton Arena in Raleigh with a sizzling show. He won the 500 in the afternoon, the 3,000 at night and then helped the East win the Reid is accustomed to pressure, having started as a freshman at North Carolina, which was ranked No. 1 for much of the season. But he calmly made his free throws in the final 3:52 and finished with 14 points and eight rebounds.

"I had to make those shots," Reid said. "I wasn't thinking about the pressure."

Tracy Compton of Santa Maria, Calif., had a near-perfect act in softball. She pitched a no-hitter, allowing just one walk in facing the minimum 21 batters as the East beat the West 1-0.

Compton, who fanned 11, walked Elise King leading off the third inning and King was forced at second on a sacrifice bunt attempt by Barb Jordan. Jordan was thrown out stealing.

Mills and Robinson were forced to sit out their freshman years last season because they failed to meet the NCAA's Proposition 48 academic requirements out of high school.

Nosek Comes Through For Generals

By RAY CRISCOE

With pitchers dropping like flies all around him, what Fayetteville manager John Lipon needed to see most was one of his struggling starters come around. Randy Nosek just happened to be a prime candidate.

A strapping 6-foot-4, 216-pound right-hander, Nosek had lost his last six decisions and had not won since he evened his record at 1-1 against Asheville on June 12. His primary problem had been control (in 401/3 innings with the Generals, he'd given up 37 walks) and support (his teammates were shut out twice and scored four runs in five of his last of a five-game homestand against the Savannah Cardinals, Nosek still put a few guys on base. But in the end, backed by some early support for a change, he delivered, helping the Generals to an 8-2 victory.

The win upped Fayetteville's second-half South Atlantic League mark to 16-14. The Generals, 49-51 overall, remain in second place in the SAL's Northern Division, 51/2 games behind Asheville. Asheville defeated Columbia 7-0 Monday

Savannah, mired in last place in the Southern Division, is now 11-17 and 61/2 games behind division leader Myrtle Beach.

Tonight's second game begins at 7:30 p.m. at Riddle Stadium. Scheduled starters are Fayetteville southpaw Joe Slavik (4-3, 3.12) and Savannah right-hander Leny Pecota (7-5, 2.78). Nosek, 2-7, pitched seven innings

Monday night and held the Cardinals to seven hits and two unearned runs. He walked four batters, but none of them scored.

"He's a better pitcher than his record indicates," Lipon said. "He's lost some tough games and we haven't played that well behind him. He hasn't helped himself by walking those people, but I think we've got him straightened out."

The Generals need Nosek to straighten out. They are already surviving without starter Scott Aldred, who has been out since June 27 with a hand injury. Darren Hursey, the team's leading winner

Arendsen Won't Forget Jackson Confrontation

DURHAM (AP) — Six years ago, during the U.S. Olympic Festival at Syracuse, N.Y., women's softball pitcher Kathy Arendsen got one of the biggest shocks of her life.

She was told she was going to pitch against baseball slugger Reggie Jackson. The confrontation, scheduled to be held outdoors after the final game of the women's softball tournament, was postponed by rain and held the following day at 7 a.m. in the Carrier Dome.

Only Jackson, Arendsen, catcher Doreen Denmon and a group of ABC-TV cameramen were on hand.

"Reggie was intimidating, he was very muscular," Arendsen recalled. "He made the bat look like a toothpick. I knew if he hit the ball, he would kill me."

Arendsen was working from the softball pitching distance, only 40 feet from home plate. After her follow-through, she was only about 33 feet from the plate. But Jackson, a powerful, lefthanded slugger who has hit 559 home runs, sixth-best in baseball history, was no match for Arendsen, a hard-throwing right-hander whose rising 90 mph fastball has produced 35 no-hitters.

He struck out swinging three times, managing only one foul ball in about 15 pitches.

"I tried to back him off with my riser," Arendsen said.

"He was a real sport about it," she said. "He was very complimentary. He also was very impressed.

"He gave us some credibility." Arendsen, who did not allow an earned run in compiling a 22-0 record last year and began this year with a career record of 224-20, sympathized with Jackson.

"The difference between baseball and softball pitchers is very huge," she said.

"They (baseball hitters) are used to seeing the ball released from here," Arendsen said, pointing above her shoulder. "We're used to pitching in windmill style," she said, lowering her hand.

Since then, the Jackson-Arendsen confrontation has been shown often on national television by ABC, and women's softball like Arendsen's best pitch - has been on the rise. It is expected to be approved as an Olympic sport for the 1992 Barcelona Games.

"My dream since I was little was to be in the Olympics," Arendsen, 28, said Monday. "I don't think a million dollars could take that

"That's why I will do everything I can to keep up with the younger kids ... and try to make the (United States) team.

While the Jackson-Arendsen matchup was a milestone for women's softball, another important year was Arendsen's entry into the high-level area of the sport in

Since then, she has been an eight-time Amateur Softball Association All-America, a member of the 1979 Pan American Games gold medal team, a member of the 1983 Pan Am silver medalists and a finalist for the 1981 Sullivan Award, given to the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

It was the only time a softball player has been a finalist for the award.

She began this year with 2,813 strikeouts in 1,834 innings and a career earned run average of 0.14. Sunday night, she lowered that ERA, pitching the East team to a 1-0, 10-inning victory over the North at the festival.

Arendsen noted that this is softball's centennial.

"It was founded in Chicago (in 1887) as an indoor baseball game," she said. "It (the softball) was an antique boxing glove that was tied

The North-West men's game should have begun with a starter's gun instead of a jump ball. There were 17 ties and 12 lead changes in the contest, and the last change came at 82-80 when Karl James. who will play at Nevada-Las Vegas, hit a 3-point field goal and a layup midway through the second half.

"We ran some offense and scored a lot of points off the fast break," said West Coach Andy Russo, whose team shot 55.7 percent from the field on 44-for-79. "Defensively, we were not picture-perfect. We are a better rebounding team and we better be with the way we have been shooting."

at 9-7, is about to miss his next turn because of an elbow problem. Felix Liriano came up with a blister on his throwing hand just two days ago, and may miss his start on Friday.

That's 60 per cent of the starting rotation on the mend. "What this does is it gives the other guys a chance to pitch and see what they can do," Lipon said. Slavik, a regular starter who rejoined the rotation in the second half after a bout with arm soreness, will be followed by long relievers Ron Rightnowar (Wednesday) and Glen Belcher (Thursday) before Lipon has to decide what to do about the series' finale on Friday. "We have asked the organization for a pitcher," Lipon said. "I don't know if they'll send somebody in from Bristol (Appalachian League) or somebody in from Lakeland (Florida State League). Anyway, we're short one man. We've only got eight active pitchers."

Lipon's hope now is that his starters can put at least 6-7 innings in each game. To that end, he'd like to get the same offensive output the Generals offered Monday night. The Generals collected eight hits and eight runs in the first three innings. They took a 1-0 lead on Phil Clark's RBI single in the first, lost it when two errors led to a pair of Cardinal runs in the top of the second, then regained the advantage with a five-run uprising in the bottom of the second. An RBI single by Randy Luciani, an RBI double by Clark, an RBI triple by Paul Foster, a run-scoring balk committed by starting and losing Cardinal pitcher Mike Henry (5-4) and another run scored on one of two Henry wild pitches in the inning accounted for the damage.

The Generals closed out the scoring an inning later on Milt Cuyler's two-out, two-run single. In all, the Generals finished with 13 hits, their second 13-hit game in five days. Clark and second baseman Arnie Beyeler led the attack with three hits apiece.

House Fire Traps, Kills Young Boy

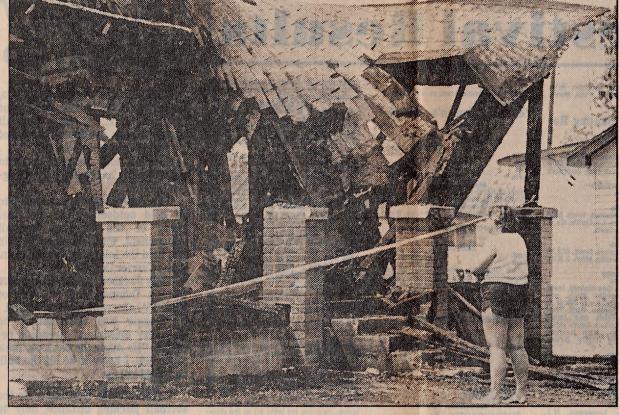

BOILING SPRINGS, S.C. (UPI) Rescuers couldn't get to a 2-year-old boy trapped in a bedroom as an early morning fire swept through the five-room house, authorities said.

Shawn Harris was found lying face down on a water bed at his home on Rainbow Lake Road near Boiling Springs, an apparent victim of suffocation by smoke, investigators said.

His grandmother, Sandra Foster, was able to push two other children to safety through a back bedroom window when she discovered the fire about 1 a.m., Spartan-burg County Sheriff's Detective John Blackwood said.

But she and a man who lived across the street were unable to rescue the other child because of the smoke and heat, Blackwood

Chisholm: Profits Run Drug Trade

By CHRIS NELSON

Former U.S. Rep. Shirley Chisholm on Monday said officials fighting drug abuse in the United States are ineffective because they are involved with the drug trade and profit from it.

"I'm not optimistic at the present time insofar as drugs in America," Chisholm said. "And I dare say it's because I spent 12 years in Washington and I know too much about what's going on."

Chisholm said the country has spent millions of dollars fighting drug abuse, but has wasted the money because the drug trade remains immensely profitable.

"Educational, preventive and rescue measures will not have an affect until we are willing to wipe out the huge profit opportunity,"

"And too often, too many of those who are in a position to affect the problems are too involved — and deeply involved because of personal greed

- to change them.
"I could tell you stories about people who seem so proper that would make your hair stand up," Chisholm said.

In the past 15 years, anti-drug measures have produced only a wide array of professionals in the drug abuse field, she said. "With so many people involved in the drug fight, why are we losing the war?" she asked.

In a lecture as part of a series at Fayetteville State University this month, the first black woman elected to Congress advocated drug treatment for youths at centers that will not

"Sure it's better for the parents to be involved, we all know that," she said. "But we also have to face stark reality.'

Chisholm said most youths involved with drugs are more afraid of their parents finding out than they are about health hazards of drugs. "What every parent in America needs to have posted (in the home) is the symptoms of drug use," Chisholm said. "Because children often conceal drug use from their parents until they are addicted and have sunk so far into crime that it will take years to straighten things out."

Programs also should offer counseling by youths who have gone through drug problems and can relate their experience to peers and younger children, she said, because young people will listen better to people their own age.

Chisholm said the nation's young are led to drug and alcohol abuse because it is glamorized by role models in sports and entertainment. Society has become more hedonistic, and a "fantastic drug bureaucracy" has been built up to stimulate a need and then fill and sustain it,

This kind of an attitude is at the root of the problem, which is this - and some people won't say this but I will: The gap between what the country says it is and what it actually is, is more like a gulf and it is widening."

The 40th TAS fund is open-ended with no specific goal. Starnes said the fund will try to raise as much money as possible.

Most of the survivor's fund initially was raised by the flight engineering section of the 178 remaining members of flying squadron. So far, $1,208 has been raised for the survivors' family members and another $645 from outside contributions to be divided equally among the other categories, which include the charitable contributions in each of the deceased's names, the scholarship funds for Bardo's children, the survivors' fund and a non-preference fund to be used where needed.

A separate offering at the base chapel on Sunday also raised $1,300 for the survivor's fund, Starnes said. While the fund is currently administered through the squadron's activity fund, Starnes said efforts are under way to establish a trust fund at the Pope Federal Credit Union. Starnes said a three-member board of trustees will be appointed to oversee the administration of the trust.

The person is sentenced to house arrest, said Jackson, who heads the pilot project here. A small transmitter strapped to the person's leg and a receiver attached to a phone in his house keeps track of the person's comings and goings.

The defendants' work times and other periods when they are allowed to leave their home are programmed into a computer in Grubbs' office on the third floor of the Hall of Justice. The computer keeps a record of when the person comes and goes.

If the defendant is gone when he is supposed to be home or home when he is supposed to be elsewhere, the computer printout points out that there is a violation. Grubbs or his office mate, Kenneth Smith, will check to see what is happening.

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A Henderson man was shot to death during an argument at a family gathering, police say.

George Southerland, 29, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of 27-year-old William Crudup. He was placed in the Vance County Jail without bond.

The shooting occurred about 1 p.m. Saturday outside a house in the Gillsburg community, about four miles south of Henderson.
