

NH 100085-KN (Color)

NORTH EUROPEAN INVASION
REHERSALS, SPRING 1944.

USS LCT-624 AND LCI-85
AT A LANDING BEACH, PROBABLY AT OR NEAR SLAPTON SANDS, ENGLAND,
DURING REHERSALS FOR OPERATION "OVERLORD".

PHOTOGRAPHED BY A COAST

SEE ALSO 06 06 44 1

2333

Public Information Division
U. S. COAST GUARD
Washington 25, D. C.

World War II
6 June 1944

EXTRONAL U. S. COAST GUARD PHOTOGRAPH - 2332

NORMANDY INVASION - D DAY

COAST GUARD LCGs UNDEEMAY

Five of Coast Guard LCGs (Landing Craft Infantry) were seen in the English Channel for the D-Day invasion of the Coast of Normandy. It was the first /medium-range D-Day picture from London. The LCGs carry, alongside, an protection against low-flying Nazi attacking planes.

This photograph taken by Coast Guard Combat Photographer S. Scott Wright, shows five LCGs moving across the original view of the photograph sent by radio-telegraph from London. The picture appeared in newspapers from coast to coast on June 6, 1944, giving the United States her first look at D-Day invasion of the French Coast on the actual day the ships got underway. The picture with Scott Wright sent the picture was sold for $1,500,000 in the first auction in a coast-to-coast "Picture Day Auction" broadcast.

U. S. COAST GUARD PHOTOGRAPH

U.S. Army troops crouch behind the bulwarks of an LCVP as it nears "Omaha" beach on D-Day. The mother ship of the LCVP was the Coast Guard-manned attack transport SAMUEL CHASE.

Courtesy, U. S. Coast Guard

Photo. L. M. 2-2-51 7

2329

From:

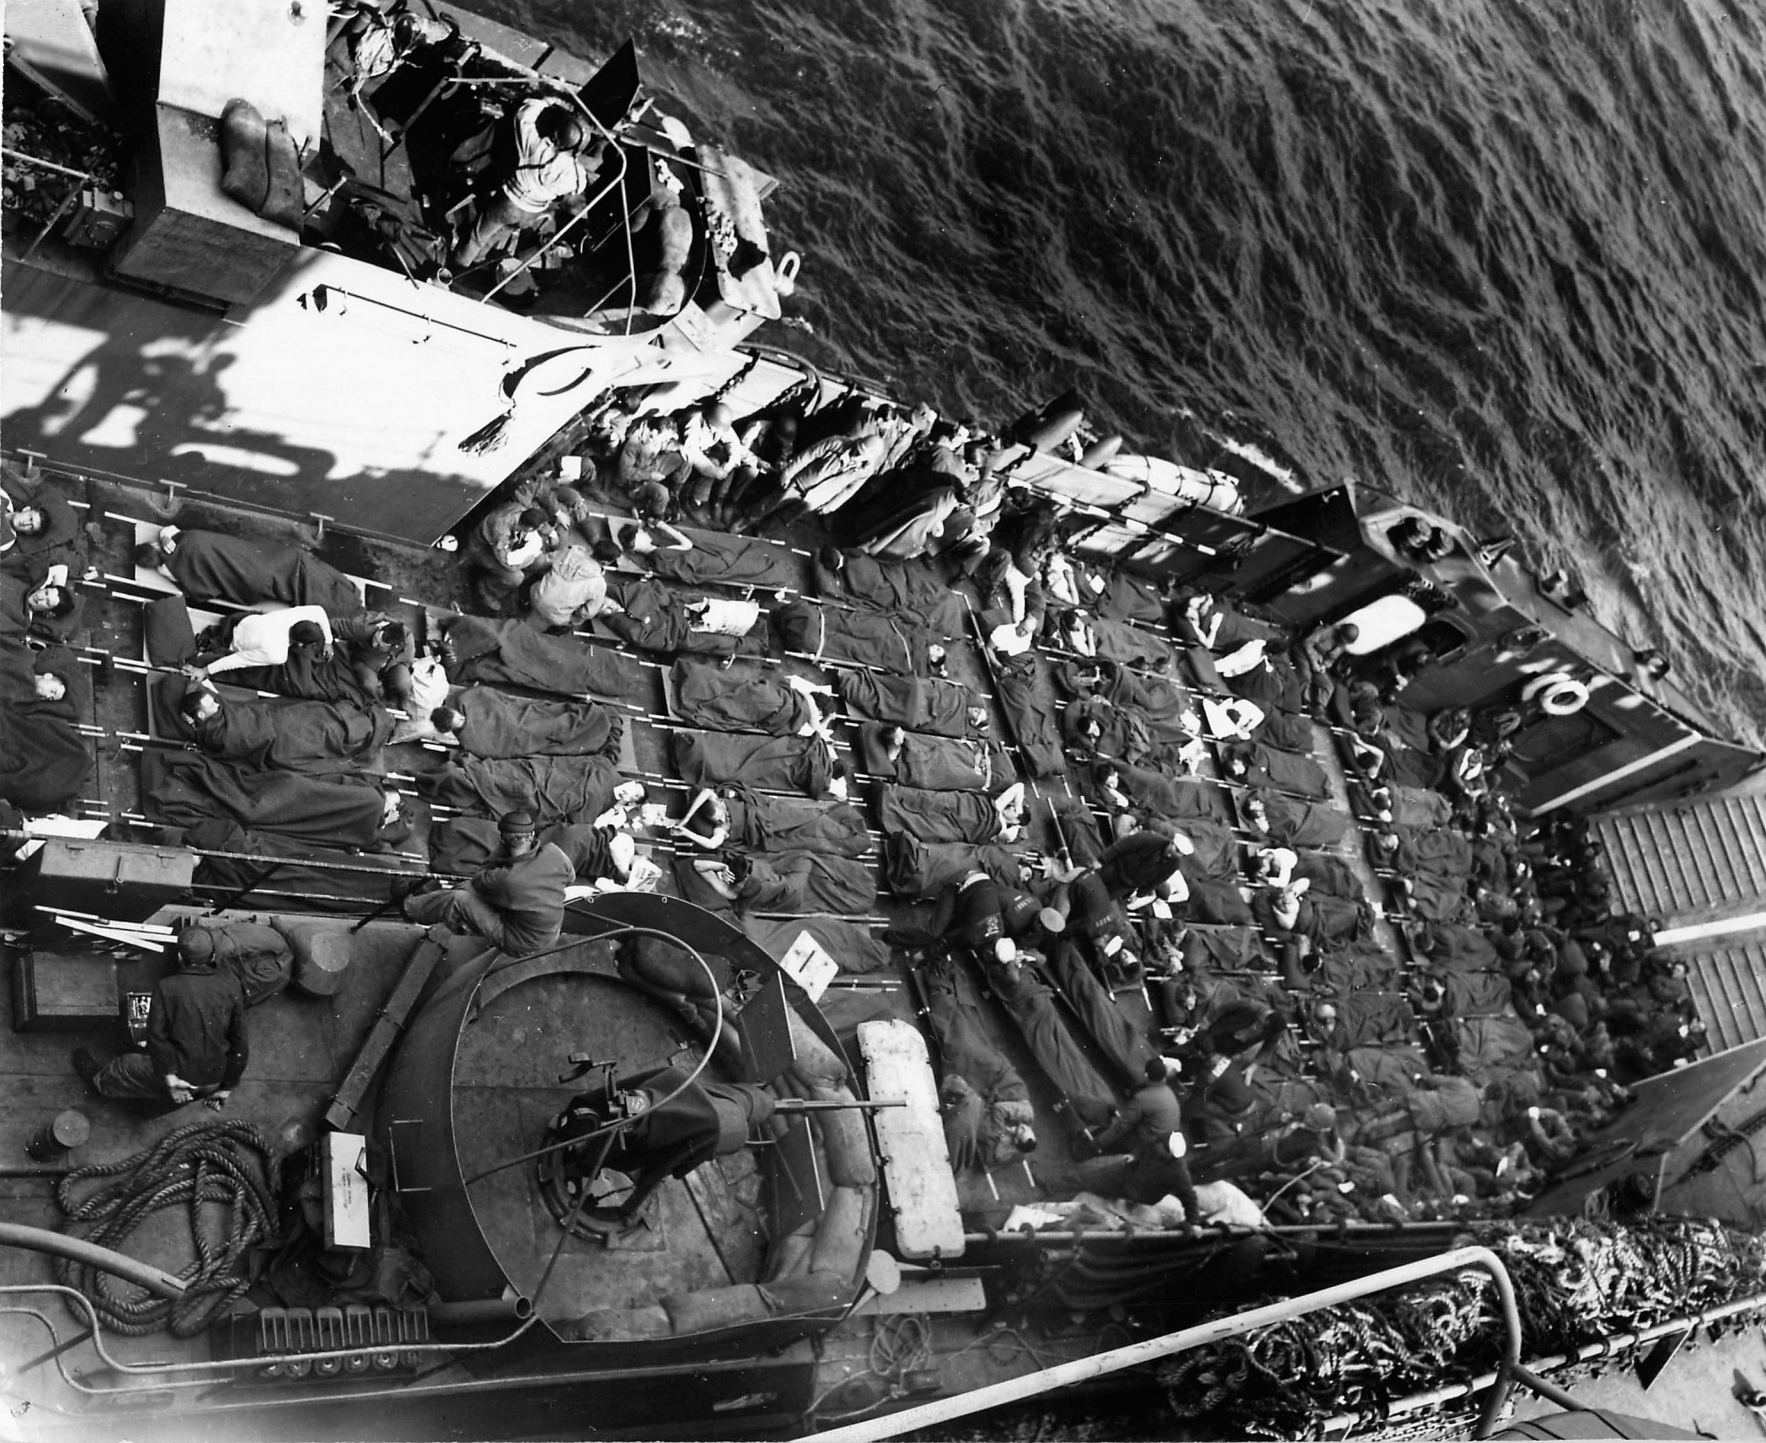

Public Relations Division
U.S. Coast Guard
Washington, D.C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

ADMIRAL STARK VISITS COAST GUARD INVASION FLOTILLA

Admiral Harold Stark, commanding all American naval forces in the European theatre, gives final instructions to three U.S. Coast Guard officers during an inspection of the Coast Guard-manned infantry landing craft flotilla shortly before the invasion of the French Coast. Left to right: Coast Guard Lieutenant (j.g.) B. B. Bornhoft, of Omaha, Neb.; Lieutenant (j.g.) D. O. Totten, of New York City; Lieutenant (j.g.) W. H. A. Tregoning, of Long Island; and Admiral Stark. The landing craft were at an undisclosed British port at the time of this last minute inspection.

***

2421

From:
Public Relations Division
U. S. Coast Guard
Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

BEACHHEADS COME HIGH

Row and row of stretchers cover the decks of a Coast Guard LCT (Landing Craft Tank) bringing out wounded invaders from the flaming soil of France. These American and British soldiers fell somewhere between the invasion beach and Cherbourg as Nazi defenders sought a high price in casualties for every yard they yielded. The wounded are being transferred to a Coast Guard assault transport which will carry them back to England for hospitalization.

*****

PG MU 108

A wounded Coast Guard coxswain is moved from his LCVF to a Coast Guard-manned transport for treatment and transfer to England. The LCVF had been hit by German machine gun fire as it approached the beach on D-Day.

Courtesy, U. S. Coast Guard

This coxswain is from LCVF in other photo

From:

Public Relations Division
U.S. COAST GUARD
Washington, D.C.

THEY'RE OFF TO WAR WITH SPIRITS HIGH

Aboard a Coast Guard-manned troop transport headed for Europe and for battle, a merry gang of G.I. Joes adjourn to the fantail for a music session. Coast Guardsman Joseph D. Morin (center) of 85 Quequechan Street, FALL RIVER, MASS. joins the jam party with his harmonica. Hardened by long months of training in the camps of America, these American soldiers radiate high spirits and high morals as they steam eastward for the battlefields of France.

***

13

2401

From:

Public Relations Division
U. S. Coast Guard
Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

OFF TO BATTLE ON CANNED MUSIC

Yankee soldiers on a Coast Guard-manned LCI keep calm to canned music from a portable victrola as their craft heads across the English Channel to the coast of France. Hot records divert their thoughts from the grim possibilities ahead. The music is provided by Coast Guardsman Harry Firman (extreme left), motor machinist's mate third class, of 1156 Sutter Avenue, ST. LOUIS, MO.

***

3 below Admin Index - cat

1

26 camp

2

3 cool

2397

FROM:

PUBLIC RELATIONS DIVISION
U.S. COAST GUARD
WASHINGTON, D.C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

LEST WE FORGET... JUNE 6, 1944

( NO. 5 IN A SERIES OF 6 )

TIME STOOD STILL--- A YEAR AGO THIS SOLDIER SPRANG FROM A COAST GUARD LANDING BARGE AND DIED AT THE BARRICADES OF WESTERN EUROPE, ON THE BULLET-SWEPT SHORES OF NORMANDY. MEN WHO WERE WITH HIM WENT ON THROUGH FRANCE, BELGIUM, GERMANY, AND NOW THEY'RE PUSHING FORWARD TO VICTORY IN THE PACIFIC AREA AGAINST THE JAPS. A YEAR HAS TAUGHT THEM MUCH; THESE MEN WERE GREEN TROOPS BUT NOW ARE BATTLE-TRIED AS THEY FACE THE JAPS. BUT TIME STOOD STILL FOR THEIR FALLEN BUDDY WHEN THEY PLACED CROSSED RIFLES BESIDE HIS BODY AS THEIR FINAL TRIBUTE BEFORE PUSHING ON. AN EXTRA WAR BOND WILL HASTEN THE DAY WHEN SCENES LIKE THESE WILL NO LONGER BE COMMONPLACE.

110

NOTE TO EDITORS: THIS PHOTO WAS RELEASED PREVIOUSLY BUT IS SUBMITTED AGAIN AS BEING PARTICULARLY APPROPRIATE FOR THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF D-DAY.

80-G-252688

(NATIONAL ARCHIVES)

NORMANDY INVASION, JUNE 1944.

TWO OF USS BAYFIELD"s (APA-33)
LCS(R) BOATS MOORED TOGETHER OFF
"UTAH" BEACH, 10 JUNE 1944.

2356

From:

Public Relations Division

U.S. Coast Guard

Washington, D.C.

Credit Line Must Read OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

COAST GUARD REMOVES WOUNDED

A Coast Guard assault transport which landed American soldiers on the coast of France during the invasion of the continent is now pressed into action to remove the wounded Americans from the beaches for transportation to another port for medical attention.

***

2754

From:

Public Relations Division

U.S. Coast Guard

Washington, D.C.

OFFICIAL U.S. COAST GUARD PHOTO

SOUTHERN FRANCE INVASION HAS ITS CASUALTIES TOO!

You couldn't convince these Allied casualties that the landings on Southern France were "easy," as some observers have declared. They paid the full price of the military venture with broken arms and legs and other injuries. They're shown just prior to transfer to a Coast Guard-manned assault transport for hospitalization.

IN REWRITING CAPTION PLEASE MENTION "COAST GUARD."

***

26-G-3423

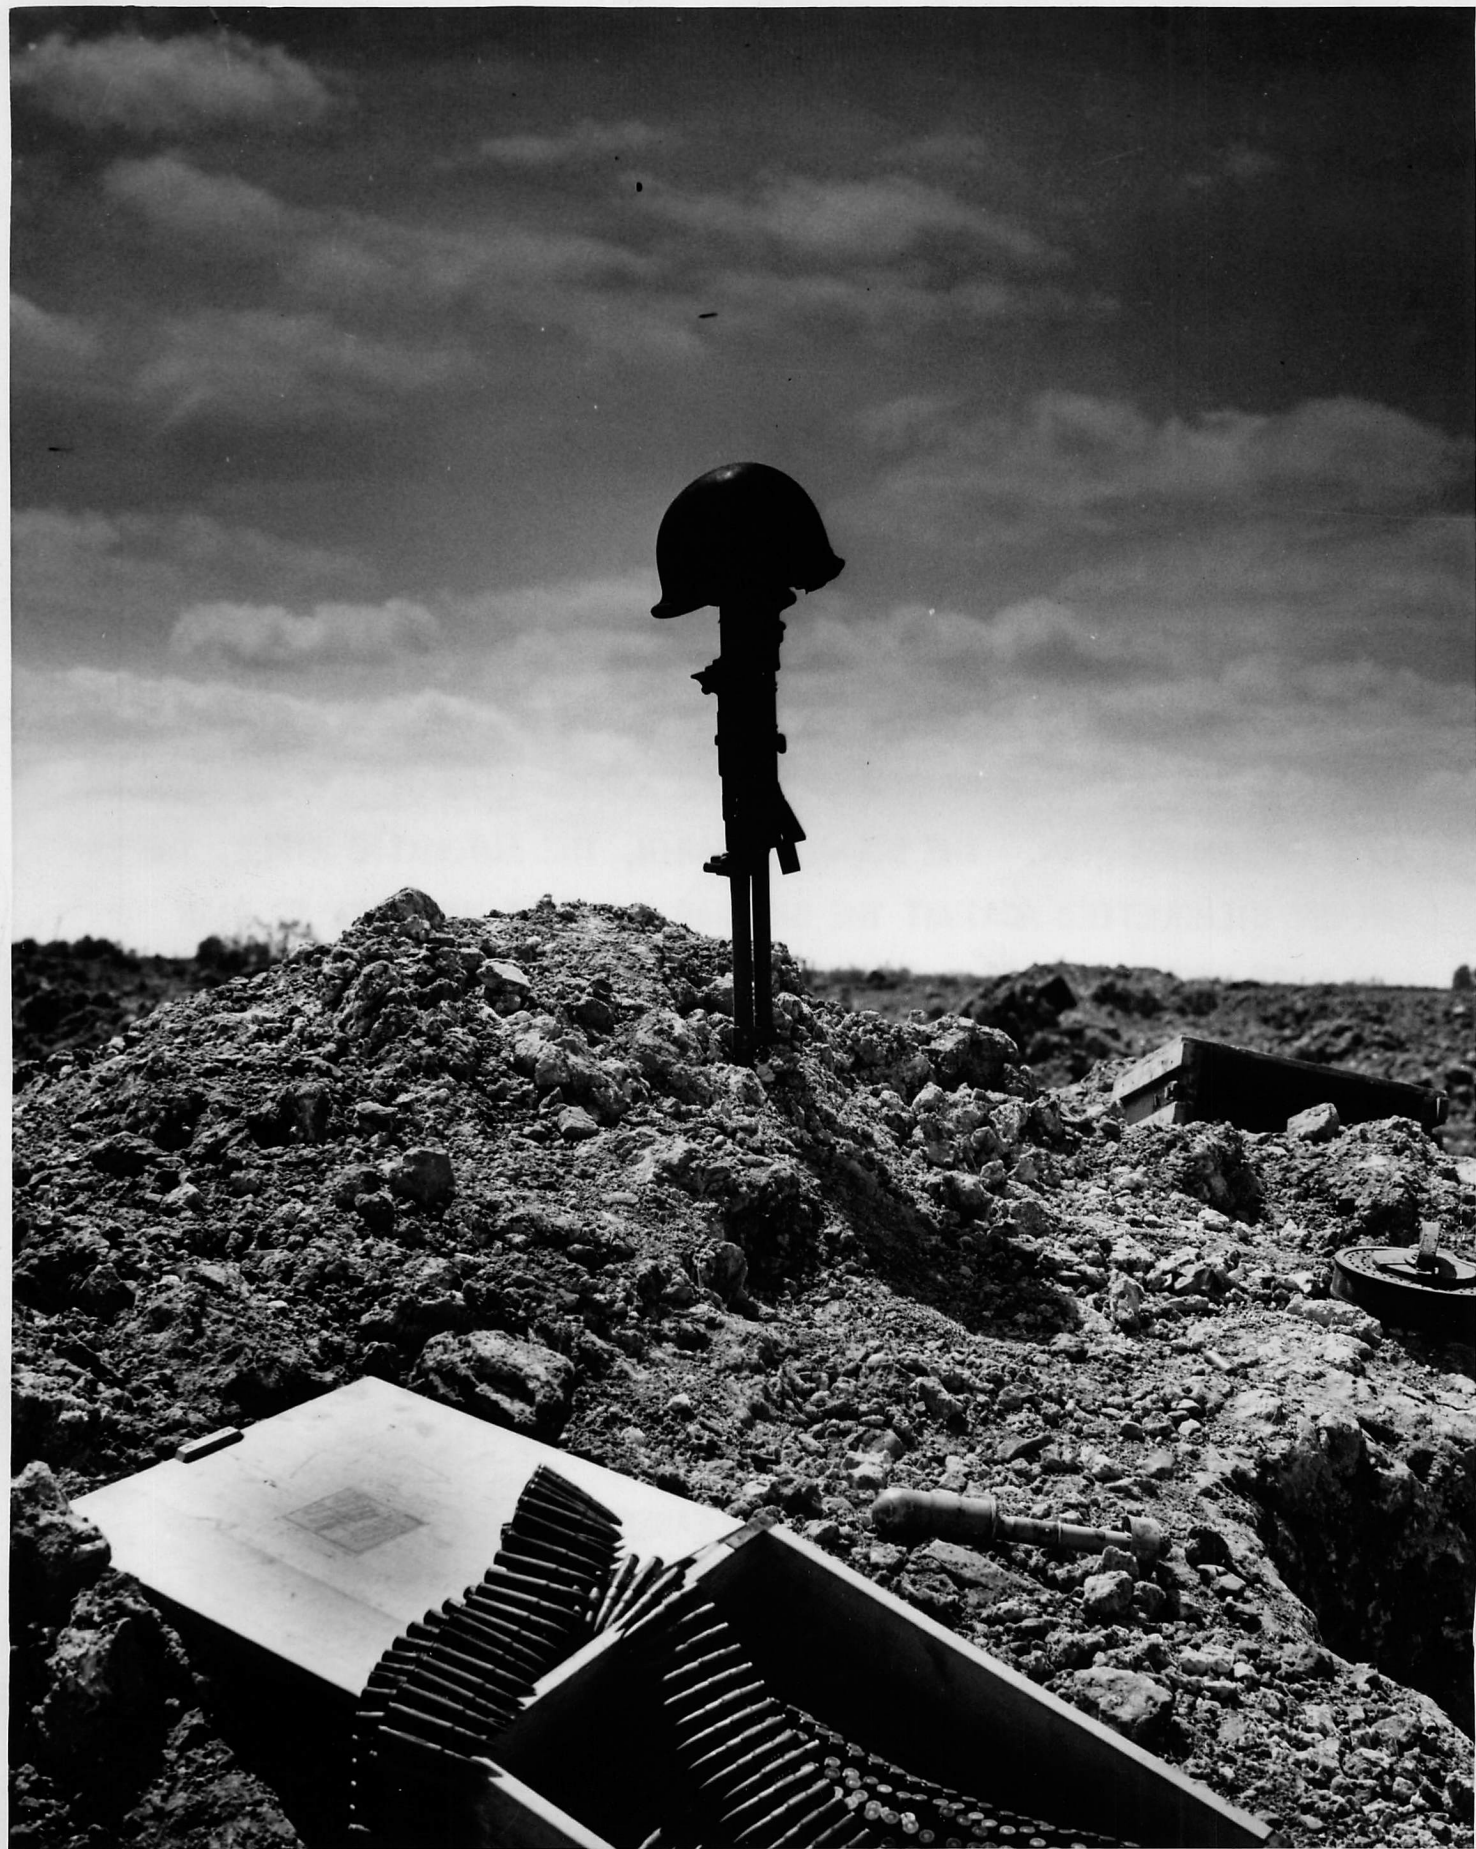

(NATIONAL ARCHIVES)

NORMANDY INVASION, JUNE 1944

LOWERING A JEEP FROM A COAST GUARD MANNED TRANSPORT INTO AN LCM, DURING JUNE 1944.

BOAT IS FROM USS JOSEPH T. DICKMAN
(APA-13), BUT THE SHIP ALONGSIDE IS NOT HER.

COAST GUARD PHOTO.

2441

FROM:

PUBLIC RELATIONS DIVISION
U.S. COAST GUARD
WASHINGTON, D.C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

LEST WE FORGET.....JUNE 6, 1944

( LAST IN A SERIES OF 6 )

SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN-- A COAST GUARD COMBAT PHOTOGRAPHER COVERING THE INVASION OF NORMANDY CAME ACROSS THIS SIMPLE MONUMENT TO A FALLEN SOLDIER. THE MOUND OF EARTH, THE AUTOMATIC RIFLE, THE HELMET SILHOUETTED AGAINST THE SKY WAS ALL THAT WAS LEFT TO MARK HIS LAST RESTING PLACE. THEN THE MEN WENT AWAY, FOR THERE WAS WORK TO DO. THERE IS STILL THAT SAME DIRTY WORK AHEAD FOR MILLIONS OF OUR FIGHTING MEN WHO ARE BATTLING TO MAKE CERTAIN THAT THE DEAD SHALL NOT HAVE DIED IN VAIN. ON JUNE 6, 1944 IT WAS THE NAZI. TODAY, THE JAP. THE WORDS ARE SPELLED DIFFERENTLY, BUT THE IDEA IS STILL THE SAME.

***

NOTE TO EDITORS: THIS PHOTO WAS RELEASED PREVIOUSLY BUT IT IS SUBMITTED AGAIN AS BEING PARTICULARLY APPROPRIATE FOR THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF D-DAY.

2406

From:
Public Relations Division
U.S. Coast Guard
Washington, D.C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

AMERICAN SKY POWER FLASHES LOW OVER LCI INVADERS

Returning from a raid over France, U.S. Army Air Force C-47s streak low over a group of Coast Guard LCIs approaching the invasion coast. Presence of this formidable air cover heartened, Army and Coast Guard invaders as they made ready to sweep through the surf against Nazi shore defenses.

***

T. J. J. J.

2429

From:
Public Relations Division
U. S. Coast Guard
Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

WOUNDED NAZI PRISONER IS TREATED

The pulse beat of the war throbs slower for this wounded Nazi prisoner--one of the first captured by the Allies when they invaded France. Safely aboard a Coast Guard transport en route to internment in this country, he rests in a comfortable sick bay bed while Coast Guardsman Richard Lawler, of 166 High Street, READING, MASS., takes his pulse.

*****

181

2605

From:
Public Relations Division
U.S. Coast Guard
Washington, D.C.
OFFICIAL U.S. COAST GUARD PHOTO

MAKE CHANNEL BID AFTER ALLIES' GRAND SLAM

Though Allied invaders held all the aces in an earlier crossing of the same waters, these Army nurses spanning the English Channel aboard a Coast Guard-manned infantry landing craft seem to be holding a few cards themselves. Bound for France to administer to American wounded, the nurses relax on deck with a game of bridge.

IN REWRITING CAPTION PLEASE MENTION "COAST GUARD"

***

3
Tm way

2391

From:

Public Relations Division
U. S. Coast Guard
Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

JAP IN NAZI UNIFORM CAPTURED

Dismay and loneliness is written on the face of this young Jap, wearing a Nazi uniform and snapped by a Coast Guard combat photographer in a roundup of German prisoners on the beaches of France. The Jap is giving his name and number to an American Army captain.

**rbp**

IN REWRITING CAPTIONS PLEASE MENTION "COAST GUARD"

2518

From:

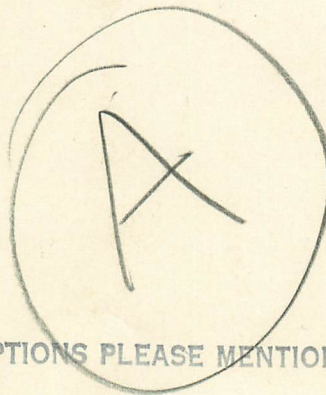

Public Relations Division
U. S. Coast Guard
Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL COAST GUARD PHOTO

HERIBBONED NAZI OFFICER CAPTURED AT ST. LO

Aboard a Coast Guard-manned LST, Nazi Lieut. Col. Hans Franz Muller (right), four times decorated for his war exploits, talks with Coast Guard Ensign Axel B. Carlson as the German is transported across the English Channel for internment in England. Muller was captured in the battle of St. Lo. He wears the Iron Cross and other medals and a ribbon for participation in the Russian campaign. Ensign Carlson's home is at 16 Church Street, Manasquan, New Jersey.

***

IN REWRITING CAPTIONS PLEASE MENTION "COAST GUARD"

058 7

~~REACH LITTER~~

INVASION BEACH LITTER--Some of the flotsam and jetsam left on the beach when the tide went down after H hour on D day. Soldiers shown looking over a bunch of lifebelts, near two landing craft. (Coast Guard Foto.)

BES--470

PASSED FOR PUBLICATION
107

Date [13 JUN 1944]

NAME CCM'L No. 61

SHAEF

FIELD PRESS CENSOR

NO	Shag	NAVY
OBJECTION
Name	John	No. 102

Starling #211

5
3
1