Distribution: Director's Message to the Work Force

POC: Michael V. Hayden [redacted]

(U) It is my pleasure to announce the establishment of the Joint NSA/CIA Collaboration Award. This award is designed to recognize exceptional accomplishments and achievements by employees, individuals or teams, from both NSA and CIA, who engage in cooperative, collaborative projects and initiatives between our two agencies. Both the Director of CIA and I place high value on those individuals who actively work partnership issues between our respective agencies. The Collaboration Award is our way of recognizing and rewarding individuals for the outstanding work they have performed through partnership and collaboration.

(U) The annual NSA/CIA Collaboration Award consists of a Partnership Medal and a significant cash award ranging from $10,000 to $25,000. The Collaboration Award will be presented annually to an employee or team of employees from both NSA and CIA. The first annual Collaboration Award will be presented by the Director of Central Intelligence at a ceremony to be held in the fall of 2004.

(U) A call for nominations for the 2004 award will be issued soon. More information on the NSA/CIA Collaboration Award, including a timeline, will be placed on the NSA Awards and Recognition page, located at:
