(U) Today's (Not 13 March's) "History Today"

(U) I very much enjoyed reading today's article about the Watch Center that later became NSOC... and especially liked the photo. How un-ornamental it was, how little it seemed to be designed for photo opportunities or for "looking cool". Do today's operations/watch centers actually benefit, in terms of mission functionality and output, from their snazzy new designs (and frequent facelifts)? It makes me wonder.
